Ford summons Cabinet for talks on economy--page 3

It's definite; Ford will run for president in '76

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford will definitely run for the presidency in 1976, his chief spokesman said today.

White House press secretary Ron Nessen told reporters Ford changed the "probably" that he has said before to "definitely" last Monday while talking to persons outside the White House.

It was learned that Ford gave an interview to be published in U.S. News and World Report this weekend in which he said he definitely will run.

Asked why Ford had positively made up his mind two years before the election, Nessen said:

"I guess you've heard him say how much he enjoys being President."

Ford himself and his spokesmen had previously said he "probably" would head the Republican ticket in the next presidential race.

"I heard him say it first on Monday," said Nessen referring to the definite statement.

In response to questions, Nessen said that through news reports Ford was aware that some Republicans might challenge his candidacy and try to nominate another GOP candidate.

Nessen said Ford obviously consulted with his wife Betty and "it's clear from the fact that he said that, she must have gone along with it."

Ford had promised his wife he would quit politics after 25 years in Congress. After he became vice president, Mrs. Ford released him from the pledge.

Since then, there has been renewed speculation that Ford might bow out because of his wife's recent breast cancer surgery. But he is reported to have told friends even if cancer should recur, Mrs. Ford would have better care in the White House than anywhere else.

UNINVITED VISITOR

Logan George, 3, surveys with perplexity the mess in his family's livingroom resulting from the crash of a car into the house. Logan's father, George, is cleaning up the home on Grand Avenue in Pomona. The family was awakened by the accident, but nobody was injured by the mishap.

Long-missing bomber turns herself in

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jane Lauren Alpert jumped bail 4-½ years ago after pleading guilty to federal charges in the 1969 anti-war bombings of several Manhattan buildings. She surrendered Thursday and said it was the "happiest day" in her life.

Miss Alpert, 27, a reputed former member of the radical Weathermen, surrendered to the U.S. Attorney and pleaded guilty before Manhattan Federal Court Judge Milton Pollack to a charge of jumping $20,000 bail in 1970. The judge freed her Thursday on $20,000 bail, but cautioned, "I hope I am not to be fooled a second time."

She told newsmen outside the court "this is really the happiest day of my life" but declined to say where she had spent the past 4-½ years, conceding only that she had remained in the United States.

In 1970, Miss Alpert was awaiting sentencing on a guilty plea to conspiracy in the bombing of the federal office building at 26 Federal Plaza and the U.S. Armed Forces Induction Center at 39 Whitehall Street in 1969.

Son arrested in mass slaying of his family

HAUPPAUGE, N.Y. (UPI) — Ronald J. DeFeo Jr., the sole survivor of an Amityville, N.Y., family of seven, has been arrested and charged with murdering his father, his mother, two brothers, and two sisters.

DeFeo, 23, was arrested Thursday night and booked on six counts of second degree murder in the deaths of his father, Ronald Sr., 43, his mother, Louise, 42, sisters Dawn, 18, and Allison, 13, and brothers Mark 11, and John, 9.

The victims were discovered in their beds Wednesday night in various second and third floor bedrooms. Police said they had been shot sometime between Tuesday and Wednesday morning.

Police said all were killed by "multiple gunshot wounds." Three had been shot in the back, two in the head and one in the neck.

Suffolk County Deputy Police Commissioner Robert C. Rapp, who announced DeFeo's arrest, declined to disclose a motive for the slayings or to give any details of the murders.

Asked if he had any comment on his arrest, Defeo replied, "I have no comment at all."

After the bodies were discovered, at the family's $75,000 home in Amityville, DeFeo was placed in protective custody. About 24 hours later, the bearded suspect was charged.

The elder DeFeo was a salesman for Brigante-Karl Buick, Inc., of 1814 Coney Island Ave., in Brooklyn, where Ronald Jr. also worked, police said.

Phone co. to build $30 million computerized facility in area

The General Telephone Co. announced plans today to build a $30 million toll switching center in Ontario to provide residents with the latest electronic equipment for long-distance service.

"The facility will be a fully computerized, self-contained center incorporating the most advanced communications technology," said R. B. Shirey, vice president and area manager.

The project, one of the most costly undertaken by General Telephone in recent years, was formally announced at a luncheon with San Bernardino County Supervisors in Cucamonga.

The toll center is being built to meet increasing telephone service demands and should be operational for customer use in 1978. Construction of the facility, located adjacent to the Ontario headquarters, is expected to start early next year, added Shirey.

When cut into service, the center will function as a primary center for long distance calls originating from communities in a region that extends from Banning on the East to Pasadena on the west.

In addition to handling basic direct distance dialing service, the Ontario center will give residents the added ability to dial their own person-to-person, collect, credit card and third number billing calls.

Shirey said the expanded long-distance services will be made possible by the center's newly designed Electronic Tandem Switching 4-Wire (ETS-4) machine and Traffic Service Position System (TSPS). "The ETS-4 and TSPS units will further improve operational efficiency when interconnecting toll calls with the nationwide network," he said.

Communities that will be tied in to the center when the initial cutover is made include those served by General Telephone exchanges in Arrowhead Crestline, Covina, Ontario, Monrovia, Etiwanda and Sierra Madre. Exchanges in Banning, Beaumont, Redlands, San Bernardino and Pomona are scheduled to become part of the center's switching system in 1981.

The ultramodern center also will enable General Telephone to offer direct distance dialing to residents of Etiwanda, Crestline and Arrowhead, and to assume control of long-distance operations in San Bernardino and Pomona that up until now have been handled by Pacific Telephone.

A $2 million, two-story building will be constructed immediately west of the utility's Ontario headquarters on D Street to house the ETS-4 unit. Installation of the machine and other telephone equipment is tentatively set to start in March, 1976.

'Knock' on front door jolts home; it's crashing car

A Pomona family received quite a jolt early today when a small car went through the front door of its home.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen George and their two children were asleep in their home at 4467 Grand Ave. when the car went out of control, crossed their front lawn and hit the front of the structure sideways.

"We were all asleep. Then everyone jumped out of bed and ran to the living room," said Mrs. George. "We didn't see the driver. He apparently got out of the car and fled before it hit the house."

Mrs. George said her brother, Marvin Standiser, was sleeping in a bedroom next to the door. "He was the first one out," she added.

Highway patrolmen said the driver was traveling west on Grand Avenue before the car crossed the lawn and hit the house. The car was found on its right side facing through the doorway.

FEA says Yule lighting okay in moderation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Energy Administration says it's all right to put ornamental lights on your Christmas tree this year —but in moderation.

John C. Sawhill, who is retiring as head of the agency, said: "Christmas is a joyful and festive time and decorations bring atmosphere to the season. But simplicity is the key. Prudence is the word."

As one aide paraphrased it: "We are asking that people be prudent and not just go bananas."

The agency had these specific suggestions:

—If you turn on ornamental lights, see if you can turn off regular lighting in the same room.

—Community lighting and displays should be turned off nightly at a given time.

Kidney failure proves fatal to Johnny Mack Brown at 70

WOODLAND HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — Johnny Mack Brown, who went from All-American college football player and Rose Bowl hero to star of hundreds of Saturday-matinee western movies in the 1930s and 1940s, died Thursday at age 70.

Brown died of kidney failure, according to a spokesman for the Motion Picture Country Home and Hospital, where he had been under treatment for a month.

Brown first won fame as a halfback on the University of Alabama team that beat the University of Washington in the 1926 Rose Bowl game 20-19 in a come-from-behind thriller in which Brown caught two touchdown passes. Brown was named to the College Football Hall of Fame in 1957.

Brown went on to become an actor, and once estimated he had appeared in more than 300 pictures, mostly B-grade westerns with his horse, "Reno."

His first western was "Billy The Kid" with Wallace Beery in 1930. From 1942 to 1950 he was consistently named to the Motion Picture Herald's list of the 10 top-money-making western stars. Almost all of his pictures were aimed at the Saturday afternoon children's market.

Brown once said that one of the benefits of becoming a cowboy actor was that he got to become friends with his boyhood heroes, the horse opera stars of an even earlier age, such as William S. Hart and Tom Mix. He was known in the 1930s as part of a polo-playing crowd that included Will Rogers, Charles Farrel, Hal Roach and Darryl Zanuck.

Brown is survived by his widow, Cornelia, his college sweetheart whom he married shortly after graduation, and four children.

Ford: hasty naming of Gibson 'mistake'

PHOENIX (UPI) — President Ford said Thursday he made a mistake in nominating Andrew Gibson as federal energy administrator before he knew Gibson was to receive $880,000 in severance pay from an oil transport company.

Ford promised: "It won't happen again."

The President said new procedures will be instituted in which the White House in the future will first announce a person is being "considered" for a post, then send the nomination to the Senate after an FBI investigation is completed.

Dense fog closes OIA, more expected tonight

Valley motorists slowly made their way to work this morning in dense fog that caused the closing of Ontario International Airport after midnight.

The fog and cloudiness brought along cooler temperatures, giving indications the unseasonable heat spell of this past week may be coming to an end. Temperatures have been 20 degrees above normal most of the week.

The weather station on the Cal Poly campus recorded a high temperature in Pomona of 81 degrees Thursday. A high of 70 degrees is normal this time of year.

Forecaster Wes Tuft of the National Weather Service said the weather will be partly sunny Saturday with a high temperature near 80 degrees. Fog and cloudiness is expected tonight and early Saturday morning.

About 500 passengers were bused to Los Angeles International Airport from Ontario early this morning when Ontario had to shut down operations because of the heavy fog.

The weatherman said a marine flow of air brought fog, cloudiness and cooler temperatures from San Diego to Seattle today.

Mountain areas will have high temperatures in the mid-60s Saturday and desert regions will have maximum temperatures in the mid-80s.

Two regents say they may close

Two UC medical schools in financial crisis

SANTA BARBARA (UPI) — The University of California may have to close one or two of its five medical schools for lack of money, two university regents have warned.

The medical schools and their associated hospitals have $32 million in unpaid bills and the UC system cannot go on supporting them without more state aid, said Regent William K. Coblentz at a meeting of the regents Thursday.

This was despite a record $47.2 million in gifts received by the university in 1974, up 11.4 per cent from gifts the previous year, the audit committee reported.

Gov. Ronald Reagan was scheduled to attend the regents' meeting today.

Coblentz said operating costs are "horrendous" at medical schools and hospitals at the Davis, Irvine, UCLA, San Diego, and San Francisco campuses, which in addition to providing teaching facilities offer public health care.

Robert O. Reynolds, chairman of a special hospital operations committee, said that if the financial problems are not faced now, "we'll have no alternative to cutting our services or doing away with a medical school."

Coblentz said that "maybe we'll have to bite the bullet and do away with one or maybe two of the medical schools and concentrate our efforts on the rest."

The audit also predicted that further financial problems would develop if the UC system assumed responsibility for the Orange County Medical Center, which it agreed to buy last month.

Although UC president Charles J. Hitch said he agreed that there was a need for "many millions of dollars in working capital," he said he did not think the university would abandon any of its medical schools.

Coblentz suggested that two separate budgets be presented to the Legislature —one for the medical schools and hospitals and another for the rest of the university.

In other board action, the regents' grounds and buildings committee approved the design of a 200-bed campus hospital and teaching clinic for UC Irvine.

The $5 million sale of the old California College of Medicine campus in Los Angeles will provide some of the funds, with another $11.7 million coming from the health sciences bond issue of 1972. The estimated cost of the facility was set at $17 million.

The regents meeting was disrupted briefly by about 200 demonstrators. Coblentz and four other regents met with the demonstrators for about an hour outside the meeting place.

The demonstrators, who included students and non students, discussed a wide range of topics, including regents' opposition to the incorporation of the largely student community of Isla Vista.

They also talked about UC investments in companies that do business in South Africa.

6th graders, seniors below par, 2nd, 3rd graders above in testing

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Statewide test results revealed today that senior high and sixth grade students are performing below the national average in writing and language skills.

But the tests, which involved 1.5 million students, showed that children in California's second and third grades scored above the national average in reading.

The results were to be presented to the state Board of Education.

Thursday, the board approved in concept a plan to equalize educational finance in the state's public schools. The plan is designed to bring California's school districts in compliance with the Serrano-Priest court decision.

The average reading test score for the third grade was two percentile points higher than the national average. Second graders performed three percentile points above the national norm. The tests were taken during the last school year.

"There is evidence that the downward trend in the sixth grade has been halted," said Alexander I. Law, chief of the Department of Education's Office of Program Evaluation and Research.

High school seniors scored 16 percentile points below the national average in writing and language skills. Sixth graders were 13 percentile points below the national norm in the same areas.

Reading scores for the seniors were down three percentile points and mathematic scores were two points below the national average. They were also three points below the national average in spelling.

"The emphasis on improving the instructional program in the lower grades in the past four or five years is paying off," said Law. "Similar emphasis will be placed on the higher grades during the next two to four years as a result of the efforts of the Reform of Intermediate and Secondary Education.

Thursday, the board backed the concept of a statewide property tax to equalize educational financing in California's public schools as mandated by the landmark Serrano-Priest court decision.

The plan, presented to the board by a special committee on school finance, envisions pouring $7.3 billion into public schools by 1980 with the help of $1.4 billion in additional taxes

Board members voted unanimously to send the proposal to their legislative committee and have it prepared in bill form. It will then be returned to the board and if approved forwarded to the legislature.

County gains representation

Reagan names valley man

J. William Murphy, 48, a Chino real estate broker, has been appointed by Gov. Ronald Reagan to the Santa Ana Regional Water Quality Control Board, the governor's office announced.

Murphy, a Republican, was recommended for the position by the San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors. The Board of Supervisors has complained in the past about a lack of representation of the county on water quality control boards.

One of the Santa Ana Basin's water quality problems results from the production of manure by the dairy industry in Chino and the consequent pollution of the Santa Ana River.

Murphy is the founder of the Bill Murphy Co. in Chino. His firm appraises and sells agricultural properties.

He replaces Elsie Kroesche of Costa Mesa on the board.

Reagan also reappointed Ronald B. Linsky of Stanton in Orange County to the board.

Regional board members serve four-year terms without salary.

NEITHER RAIN, HAIL, SLEET

A spell of bad weather couldn't keep the University of Iowa's Hawkeye Marching Band from practicing. The band will present the final half-time show of the season Saturday at the Iowa-Ohio State game. Wrapped up against the elements for the practice session is Mike Stone, a senior from Burlington.

Shotgun blasts halt high-speed car chase in city

Police officers shot out the tires of a car being pursued through downtown Ontario streets Thursday night at speeds reaching 80 miles per hour and arrested the 26-year-old driver.

Arrested was William Edward Weedmark of 1017 E. Main St., Ontario. Police reported that the pursuit began after officer Frank Fryer observed a car speeding through the intersection of Holt Boulevard and Euclid Avenue about 8:42 p.m. About 15 minutes later, officer Richard Hyche fired two shotgun blasts at the vehicle's tires at B Street and Mountain Avenue.

Two police cars and two other vehicles were damaged during the high-speed chase that went back and forth from San Antonio and Benson avenues across Hollowell, Vesta, B, D and other streets in downtown Ontario. Weedmark and one of three passengers in his car were slightly injured.

Police reported that Fryer began the pursuit of Weedmark's vehicle when it accelerated on Holt Boulevard and turned northbound on Mountain Avenue. At one point in the pursuit, Weedmark's vehicle spun around in a front yard on Vesta Avenue, straightened out and sped off towards Mountain Avenue after hitting a parked car. A police unit was damaged at Elderberry Avenue and B Street by the fleeing vehicle.

Hyche reported that Weedmark's vehicle sped towards him at Mountain Avenue and B Street and he had to jump out of the way. Hyche said he fired two shotgun blasts at the vehicle, the pellets hitting both the right front and right rear tires, deflating them.

After the shots were fired, Weedmark's vehicle went out of control and crashed into Fryer's police car head on. Fryer was not injured.

Weedmark and his three passengers were transported by officers to the Ontario Police Station where they were questioned. The three passengers were later released after telling officers that during the pursuit they had pleaded with the suspect to stop the car.

Weedmark was booked at West End Jail on suspicion of assaulting a police officer and numerous traffic violations.

Hitchhiker says he's guilty in driver's death

Thomas Landis, 19, a former resident of Diamond Bar, pleaded guilty Thursday to first-degree murder in connection with the death of a man who gave him a ride from Utah to Southern California.

Landis was arrested Oct. 11 in Victorville. He was driving the blood-smeared van of Carl Hartley, 54, of Norwalk, whose body was found in Lytle Creek Canyon north of Fontana.

Landis reportedly told police where to find the body.

In exchange for the man's plea of guilty to murder, prosecutors in San Bernardino Superior Court dropped kidnaping charges against Landis.

According to police, Hartley picked up Landis in Utah and gave him a ride to California.

Landis' current home address is listed in Colorado.

Sticky Border Patrol case hushed to hide corruption?

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Federal investigators have information that a U.S. Border Patrol agent from Texas acted as an armed bodyguard in Mexico for Mexican President Luis Echeverria during his presidential campaign, the Los Angeles Times reported today.

The newspaper said smuggling charges brought against the federal agent —for illegally shipping riot control equipment to the Mexican government — were reportedly dropped for fear of embarrassing high Mexican and American officials.

The Times identified the former border patrolman as Raymond D. Bond of McAllen, Tex.

The newspaper attributed its information to sources connected with Operation Clean Sweep, an investigation into corruption of U.S. officials along the Mexican border.

The Times said there is evidence to believe the motivation for dropping smuggling charges against Bond may have included a fear that Bond would make public corruption among higher-ranking U.S. officials.

The newspaper said that "among the apparent links between Bond and Mexican officials uncovered by Operation Clean Sweep investigators was the fact that in 1969 Bond travelled with Echeverria while he campaigned for the Mexican presidency.

"A number of witnesses and investigators have told the Times that Bond was armed at the time and identified himself as a member of Echeverria's official bodyguard," the Times reported.

Bond was forced to retire from the Immigration and Naturalization Service, after 22 years service, renouncing his pension benefits, in return for the federal government dropping smuggling charges against him.

Janitor has no cash so robbers take his radio

A custodian at Palomares Park was robbed of his AM-FM radio by two young men, one of whom pulled a pistol and demanded money Wednesday night.

The victim, James E. Young, 26, Montclair, said he was alone, mopping he gym floor when the pair entered, asked about a basketball game and then one drew the weapon. When they got no money from Young (he'd left his wallet at home), they took his radio valued at $55 and fled.

The armed youth was described as a Negro about 18, 5 feet 8 weighing 135 pounds. He wore a black knit cap, pink sweatshirt and gray trousers. He had a small-caliber pistol.

Redlands doesn't like idea

S.B. proposal for airport at A.F. base gets boost, knock

SAN BERNARDINO (CNS) — The U.S. Air Force Thursday night released an environmental impact report favorable to a proposal to permit the City of San Bernardino to create a municipal airport at Norton Air Force Base.

The proposal is for joint use by the city and the military of the runway and the tower facilites, but San Bernardino Mayor Robert Holcombe made it clear at the hearing on the report that the city was looking ahead to the time when it would have the facility for its exclusive use as a municipal airport.

Release of the report sparked what may be a bitter battle between San Bernardino and Redlands over the use of the facility by commercial airlines. A steady stream of Redlands officials, civic leaders and residents strode to the rostrom to denounce both the San Bernardino proposal and the Air Force report.

Redland's Mayor Jack Cummings, said the people of Redlands were willing to endure Norton Air Base as a military facility, because they were patriotic Americans but said they would bitterly oppose any commercial use of the facility.

Cummings complained that the report virtually ignored the existence and then further ignored the "obvious" problems that the use by commercial aircraft would create.

He cited increased noise and air pollution, plus the decreased property values and the destruction of the "quality of life" in the quiet east valley community.

Cummings noted that the Air Force would at first limit the number of commercial flights to five per day, but said would eventually grow to a number unacceptable to his city.

Man is injured in Brea Canyon crash

A Buena Park man was injured Thursday when his car overturned on Brea Canyon Road near Canon Way, Chino area.

William Mears, 25, was first treated at Chino General Hospital an later transported to the San Bernardino County Hospital.

He was driving west on Brea Canyon Road about 40 miles an hour when his car hit a dirt shoulder. The driver overcorrected and lost control, causing the car to overturn, and then was ejected, said highway patrolmen.

NO HARD FEELINGS?

Former Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg, right, and Nelson Rockefeller shake hands as Goldberg prepares to testify in Washington at the Senate Rules Committee hearing on Rockefeller's nomination to be vice president. The two have been at odds over a controversial biography of Goldberg which figured in the 1970 gubernatorial campaign between the two.

Words of war sound harsher in Mideast

By United Press International

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin warned Syria today not to violate the U.N.-policed disengagement accord on the occupied Golan Heights and said if it did Damascus would find Israel strong and ready. Cairo newspapers reported that Israel was planning a new war against the Arabs.

Rabin's remarks came as urgent demands mounted for a national emergency "wall-to-wall" coalition government in what political sources said was Israel's worsening position in the Middle East.

Moussa Sabry, editor of the semi-official Cairo newspaper Al Akhbar said in a page one article "our enemy is preparing for a new military round. Belts have been tightened in Israel so the military establishment can meet the requirements of the new war."

Al Ahram editor Ahmed Baha'eddin, said the Arabs should take seriously current talk of a possible new war "which only complete Arab unity can thwart."

Addressing the Tel Aviv Engineers' Club, Rabin said he hoped Syria would decide to renew the U.N. mandate to enforce the Golan cease-fire despite recent statements by Damascus that the international peace-keeping force might be removed when the mandate expires Nov. 30.

"We shall not violate agreements we have signed," Rabin said. "We expect the other side to honor its obligations as well. "I suggest that each side not entertain illusions that it has the ability to take a unilateral step."

U.S. officials said today in Washington that, while the situation in the Middle East undoubtedly was rather tense because of a variety of developments, they had nothing to suppport the Cairo newspaper reports that an outbreak of hostilities was imminent.

They said the United Nations General Assembly debate, demonstrations on the West Bank of the Jordan, stringent economic measures in Israel and various other things had contributed to the somewhat heightened atomosphere of tension —but there were no indications that it would go beyond that.

Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat spoke about Israeli preparation for a fifth Middle East war at the Arab summit conference in Rabat last month and again in his speech before the U.N. General Assembly Wednesday.

Arafat said such a war "forebodes nuclear destruction and cataclysmic anniliation."

Sabry said "leaders of the Israeli military establishment are paving the ground for a new war with a flow of public declarations and continuous preparations quoted in the world's press.

"Commentators are disagreed only on who will take the initiative this time, Egypt or Israel," Sabry said.

It was Egypt and Syria who started the October 1973 war.

"If we Arabs, make good use of the economic weapons we possess, I have no doubt that the sun will never set on our future," Sabry said in a clear reference to the use of Arab oil and capital as weapons in the Middle East conflict.

$50 billion oil rescue loan fund proposed by U.S.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said Thursday the United States has proposed that a special loan fund of up to $50 billion be established to rescue oil short nations from financial disaster and political blackmail.

Kissinger said the nations of Western Europe, North America and Japan should move to place in motion "a system of mutual support" to meet "the most serious problem facing the consuming countries...economic and financial strain resulting from high oil prices."

"The United States proposes," Kissinger said, "that a common loan and guarantee facility be created to provide for redistributing up to $25 billion in 1975, and as much again the next year if necessary."

He said the facility would not be a new aid institution funded by additional taxes.

Doctors won't examine Nixon unless he gives permission

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The three doctors assigned to determine whether Richard M. Nixon is well enough to testify in the Watergate cover-up trial are awaiting legal clarification before examining him.

Dr. Charles A. Hufnagel, head of the medical team appointed Wednesday by U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, told a news conference Thursday the doctors cannot proceed until the court determines whether Nixon will agree to an independent medical evaluation.

"It is not the job of the panel to engage in a legal problem," Hufnagel said. He said he believed Nixon would have to give his permission before being examined and if he didn't, "this would then be a matter for the courts to decide."

Hufnagel said he expects clarification from Judge Sirica in a day or two.

Nixon has been subpoenaed by defendant John D. Ehrlichman to testify at the trial of former associates accused of covering up the Watergate scandal.

After Sirica appointed the team Wednesday, Dr. John Lungren, Nixon's personal physician, indicated it was all right to examine him, saying "my colleagues and I will welcome the examination by the court appointed physicians. We know they will examine the patient and his records in an objective manner."

Hufnagle is a cardiovascular surgeon and chief of surgery at Georgetown University Hospital in Washington. The other members of the team are Dr. Richard Starr Ross, director of the adult cardiac clinic at Johns Hopkins University Hospital in Baltimore; and Dr. John Spittell Jr., cardiologist and internist at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn.

Weak, underweight Nixon back home

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — A weak and underweight Richard Nixon convalesced at home in San Clemente today, with his doctors worrying that the Watergate court's medical examiners may subject him to unnecessary strain.

Nixon, pale and shaky in pajamas and robe, appeared to totter as he left Long Beach Memorial Hospital Thursday, ending a 23-day stay in which he came close to death following surgery.

His doctors said he would be confined to bed at San Clemente.

Ford summons Cabinet; topic: economy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford, who says inflation is "starting to recede," summoned his Cabinet to a meeting today to assess prospects of congressional passage of his economic program in the lameduck session.

Ford also will review his forthcoming Asian trip with the Cabinet and scheduled meetings with his top economic advisers to discuss how to cut $5 billion from the 1975 fiscal year budget.

Having conceded that the nation's economy is now in a state of recession, Ford made it plain at a news conference in Phoenix, Ariz., Thursday that he believes his "finely tuned" 31-point program will meet the current challenges of a recession-inflation economy.

Ford was clearing the decks with his advisers before departing on his Sunday on his first major foreign trip. He justified the journey as his responsibility in pursuit of foreign policy objectives even though he leaves the country at a time when it has no vice president.

In a question-and-answer session Thursday night, Ford showed a combative, campaigning spirit despite the defeat of of many of the GOP candidates he fought for in October. He indicated that he would pattern his actions after the first President he ever met, Harry S. Truman, and hold Congress accountable for its 1974 mandate.

Many questions and answers dealt with another area of collision with Congress. Ford's appointment of Nelson A. Rockefeller as vice president was No. 1 on his list of "the best things we've done" in the first days of his administration. Ford, trying to get Congress to "fish or cut bait" on the nomination, made a point of suggesting that Congress reexamine the 25th Amendment, to speed up the appointive sections.

Most of the questions from the regular White House correspondents and the members of Sigma Delta Chi, the professional journalists' society, dealt with the economy. Ford again rejected a tax on gasoline and repeatedly opposed wage and price controls, calling them "just absolutely the wrong approach to the solution of a weakening economy."

Holy roller skating rabbi wins discrimination battle

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (UPI) — Rabbi Gordon Gladstone had a problem.

He and several friends had gone roller skating and the Rabbi was surprised when a rink attendant stopped him and said that because of safety rules he couldn't wear his hat.

As always —except when he sleeps or showers —the rabbi was wearing his skullcap.

"I said, 'This isn't a hat' and I skated off," said the rabbi.

Gladstone was stopped a second time and told if he didn't remove the "hat," he would have to leave the rink.

"I explained that this was part of my religious belief and it was a fairly extensive practice among the Jewish faith," said the rabbi, but to no avail.

So, when Gladstone would not remove his skullcap —a small circular piece of cloth held on by two bobby pins —he was kicked out.

The next day he filed a religious discrimination complaint with the Ohio Civil Rights Commisstion.

That was last April and now, more than six months later, the Civil Rights Commission has ruled in Gladstone's favor.

"What we were dealing with was not a clear case of religious discrimination, but accidental discrimination based on a safety rule," figures the rabbi. "However, by virtue of its existence, it was religious discrimination against me."

Gladstone said he received "hate mail and other critical reaction" stemming from the incident. "Some people thought what I did was childish," he said.

"But I really felt discriminated against," added the 28-year-old rabbi, who has a congregation of 59 families.

"I won a personal battle but I'm not too sure how big an overall blow I struck," he said. "I don't know too many rabbis that roller skate."

The managers of the rink —a married couple who confronted the Rabbi —have been fired and an official of the controlling corporation said he was "embarrassed" about the incident.

"We had some people around who weren't familiar with Jewish customs or traditions," said Golden Tee, Inc. executive Paul Sacolick, himself a Jew who used to wear a skullcap. "I think the rabbi was treated pretty crudely and we shouldn't have thrown him out.

"But," added Sacolick, "we're still not going to allow skating in big, floppy hats that could fall off and wreck other skaters. We're just going to make sure our people know what skullcaps are."

Amtrak rates up 10% on most trains

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Starting today, traveling by rail will be 10 per cent more expensive on most Amtrak trains. Family groups will pay an even heftier increase.

Amtrak's new fare schedule increases fares 10 per cent for individual passengers on all but a handful of routes.

Family fare discounts for accompanying family members will cost an additional 12 per cent, with an accompanying spouse's fare increased from two-thirds to three-fourths of regular fare.

Fares on several routes remain the same — Chicago-Detroit, Chicago-St. Louis, Chicago-Port Huron, New York-Montreal via Albany, and local fares between Chicago and Denver.

Conventional coach fares on the Washington-New York, Springfield-Metroliner line rise 5 per cent although Metroliner tickets will rise the full 10 per cent.

The only increase greater than 10 per cent for individual travelers is a 20 per cent increase between Chicago and Florida.

Inflation hedge from Canada

Over-the-counter gold bullion sales

WINDSOR, Ont. (UPI) — The store Larry Thoman runs in this city across the river from Detroit sells something no other American store can offer and business is booming.

Thoman, 34, a former bank manager, accepts no credit cards or personal checks for his wares —strictly cash.

He operates the Stirling Gold and Silver Trading Corp. and sells gold bullion over the counter.

"Let's see," he says, "today a 20-ounce bar of gold will run $3,967. A one-ounce wafer, our best-seller, will run you $211.75."

On the London gold market Wednesday, gold hit a new record of $185.25 an ounce.

One stockbroker in Detroit Thursday said Americans are able to buy gold coin or stocks in gold mining firms, but bullion cannot be legally purchased domestically until Jan. 2.

The firm Thoman works for, owned by George Stirling, bought large quantities of gold bullion in 1970 and 1971 when prices were a fraction of what they are today.

In January 1972, gold was selling at $47 an ounce, a year later at $65 and by last January it had gone up to $128 an ounce.

Dealers like Thoman says the phenomenonal rise is due to record inflation rates and general gloom in the global economy.

One reason offered for rushing to the Windsor firm was given by a gold buyer who reflected consumer fears of inflation by saying: "I want to leave something to my children that will still be of value."

"I was going to leave them cash, but who knows what that will be worth."

Another customer said, "It sure beats the hell out of trying to make money on the stock exhcange."

Others said they thought the bullion would make a nice Christmas present.

As for the future, Thoman says the price of gold bullion will never go down, but adds, "although since gold is just a commodity it's going to disappear one day."

DISAPPEARING FALL — Woman walks along lonely country road near Sioux Falls, S. D., as signs of disappearing fall season and approaching winter are evident with corn fields barren after the harvest.

'Can't do a thing about food prices'

FRESNO (UPI)—Assistant U. S. Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter said Thursday "nothing can be done" about current high food prices but consumer resistance could be effective on certain products such as sugar.

In a news conference prior to a speech before the National Water Resources Association, Yeutter noted the recent "dramatic" increase in the price of sugar had been spurred partially by panic buying. He said a dropoff in buying as little as two or three per cent would force the price back down.

The farm official said the world food situation would continue to hold food prices at the current high levels for the near future but said good weather in 1975 and increased production could bring prices down somewhat.

Cancer-producing substances in water also found in blood

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Scientists in New Orleans who found substances suspected of causing cancer in the drinking water now say some of those same compounds are showing up in the blood of people who drink the water.

The implications of the finding are not entirely clear, but the Environmental Protection Agency said Tuesday it will pursue the discovery.

John L. Laseter, chairman of the Department of Biological Sciences at the University of New Orleans, said his scientific experiments found at least 100 compounds, some possible cancer-causers —or carcinogens — in the water.

"We also found a number of the same compounds, including carbon tetrachloride —a well-established animal carcinogen and highly suspect in man —in the blood plasma of the several dozen New Orleans citizens we examintd," he said in an interview in Washington.

It is possible, he said, for the substances to get into the blood via the air, food or water; but he said the air was tested and ruled out as a possible source.

He said most of the compounds were not found in raw Mississippi River water, indicating they originated in the water treatment and chlorination process. Similar findings prompted the EPA last week to launch a nationwide survey of drinking water supplies.

Laseter cautioned about jumping to the conclusion that chlorination causes cancer. "The problem has to be studied further," he said "We don't want a panic.

"To do away with chlorination is absurd because we would die from disease within hours if the water weren't chlorinated."

Asked about his findings, Laseter said:

"It's one thing to say carbon tetrachloride is in the water, but to find it in your blood is something else. It takes on a new significance.

State Department of Agriculture criticized

Study shows stress on politics rather than growing food costs

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — An Assembly study indicates that the Department of Agriculture and its advisory board may be spending too much time in politics and not enough studying the high cost of food.

A preliminary summary of a year-long study cited several instances where the board and the department director appeared to be involved in politics.

The study said that in 1972 the state Board of Agriculture "deliberately" scheduled a meeting in Indio to coincide with a re-election fundraiser for them President Richard Nixon.

It also cited a San Diego meeting in 1973, when Nixon was embroiled in Watergate, board members passed a resolution expressing "full confidence" in the President and then "adjourned to dine" at the Westgate Hotel with a top Nixon fundraiser, C. Arnhol Smith.

"It seems to me the director and the board have better things to do than raise money for presidential candidates and then pass resolutions praising him for his handling of the most nefarious scandal in American political history,'' said March Fong, D-Oakland.

The accusations were contained in a seven-page summary sent to C. Brunel Christensen, director of the Department of Food and Agriculture, from Ms. Fong, head of the Select Committee on Agriculture, Food and Nutrition.

Board member Paul Ames told UPI it was a "coincidence" that the meeting and the fundraiser were scheduled for the same day in the same town.

Donald A. Weinland, executive secretary for the board, said he was requested by Ames, who lives in Indio, to distribute a "brochure" announcing the fundraiser Oct. 6, 1972 along with other official information concerning the board meeting.

Minutes of the meeting also showed that Ames announced the fundraiser shortly before members adjourned the meeting to go to the luncheon as "honored guests."

"It was an unusual situation we got ourselves into," Ames said. "But we did our very best at the time to keep the record straight."

Christensen said the summary by the Fong committee was "entirely political." He said detailed answers to the charges were being prepared.

Ms. Fong said agricultural policy has been "politicized beyond belief in the past two years, politicized to such an extent that you (Christensen) are paralyzed to act in the pocketbook interest of the public even when you want to."

The summary also said that on May 3, 1973, the board passed a resolution which said "board members wish to express their full confidence in the president, fully convinced that actions of the President are always motivated to promote the best interests of the United States."

Asked about the luncheon hosted by Smith, Christensen said it was arranged by a member of the board and others went on a voluntary basis.

"Actually he (Smith) just came and visited shortly," Christensen recalled. "His brother took us to the luncheon."

Smith, a former San Diego bank president, reportedly raised $1 million for Nixon's re-election campaign and personally contributed $250,000.

Edison granted rate hike OK

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The California Public utilities Commission authorized Southern California Edison Thursday to boost its rates by $63.1 million a year to offset higher fuel costs.

The utility had asked for an increase of $113.4 million annually, but the commission said the average cost of fuel oil will be lower than Edison had anticipated and fewer kilowatt hours will be needed to supply its market.

Monthly bills for a typical residential consumption of 500 kilowatt hours will be increased by 65.5 cents, the commission said.

The increase was effective immediately.

KATHLEEN BETH MOORE

Overweight beauty queen resigns

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Pretty 22-year-old Kathleen Beth Moore has resigned her Miss Washington title in protest after pageant officials noted she was overweight.

Miss Moore said she was asked by the state pageant board last month to lose the 10 pounds she had gained since being named one of the Miss America finalists last September.

She said she has since lost eight pounds but was discouraged to find "the highest emphasis is on the figure."

"I had been led to believe the Miss Washington contest was not just another beauty pageant and the young woman should be a composite of talent, personality and beauty, with the emphasis on talent," said the 5-6 Bothwell, Wash., woman.

The pageant board, besides pressuring her to lose weight, was constantly playing big sister and checking up on her, she said.

She had lost 35 pounds before being selected Miss Northshore, a title that propelled her into the Miss Washington contest. She lost that weight by running around Green Lake in Seattle every morning after voice lessons and living on a 500-calorie daily diet.

Miss Moore declined to say how much she now weighs but says that she was greatly overweight as a teen-ager, when she tipped the scales at 180 pounds.

"My telephone didn't ring a lot in those days," she said.

At Atlantic City, N.J., the former Brigham Young University coed displayed a curvey, size-10 figure and a lilting soprano voice.

Miss Moore will give up a $2,000 scholarship, a car, a camera, typewriter, watch, trophies and clothes that went with the title.

She now is working as a checker in a Seattle supermarket and hopes to earn enough money to pay for studies at the Julliard School of Music in New York.

"I want to continue with my goals of having a singing career," she said.

Charlene Myer of Burien will take over the title of Miss Washington. She was runner-up in the state contest held in Vancouver, Wash.

Buck deer attacks police car

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa (UPI) — A buck deer attacked a city police car here early Wednesday, causing an estimated $200 damage to the car and sending a police dog into a frenzy.

Patrolman Robert D. Warner said he had just checked a filling station in the eastern part of the city and started to drive north on a city street in a residential area when he saw the deer.

"I was traveling about 20 miles per hour," Warner said. "The buck put his head down and charged at the side of my station wagon. I swerved to the left but the deer struck the passenger side with such force that everything on the right side of the car ended up on the left side."

Warner said even the spare tire cover was knocked loose by the impact.

The deer, he said, "just kept right on going."

He said the police dog in the cruiser with him "started barking and raising cain, but he is trained to remain in the car unless I give him the order to get out."

Board ponders future of four unused school sites

The administration of the Ontario-Montclair school district will conduct a study analyzing four unoccupied sites and the potential growth of the district.

The decision, made at the Thursday meeting of the school board, was in response to a letter received by the board from Temple Baptist Church, Ontario, asking to lease with option or to buy outright the vacant school buildings and property at the corner of San Antonio Avenue and D Street.

Trustee Sam Di Giovanni led off the discussion saying, "I think it is premature to sell the property now just because we have had a slight decrease in enrollment. We could have a change. First we need a study. If we sold the property to a church it would not put it back on the tax rolls and some of the neighbors might complain. They may not want a church there. I wouldn't balk at leasing the property but I wouldn't want to sell now."

George A. Duerr, deputy superintendent, told the board that the proceeds from any property sold could be kept by the district for capital outlay rather than having to revert to the state.

Richard Pearson, president of the board, noted that there are several pieces of property in the district which are not in use. Supt. Jack Jones replied that there are now four other unused sites for which the district pays $7,000 in taxes annually.

He explained that after a site is unused for five years the district must pay taxes to all other governmental units on the property.

Jones pointed out to the board that if the district needed the sites later the property would cost a good deal more. "The problem is that we are now paying to hold the sites but on the other side, it may be a wise investment. That is why we need a study before any decision," he said.

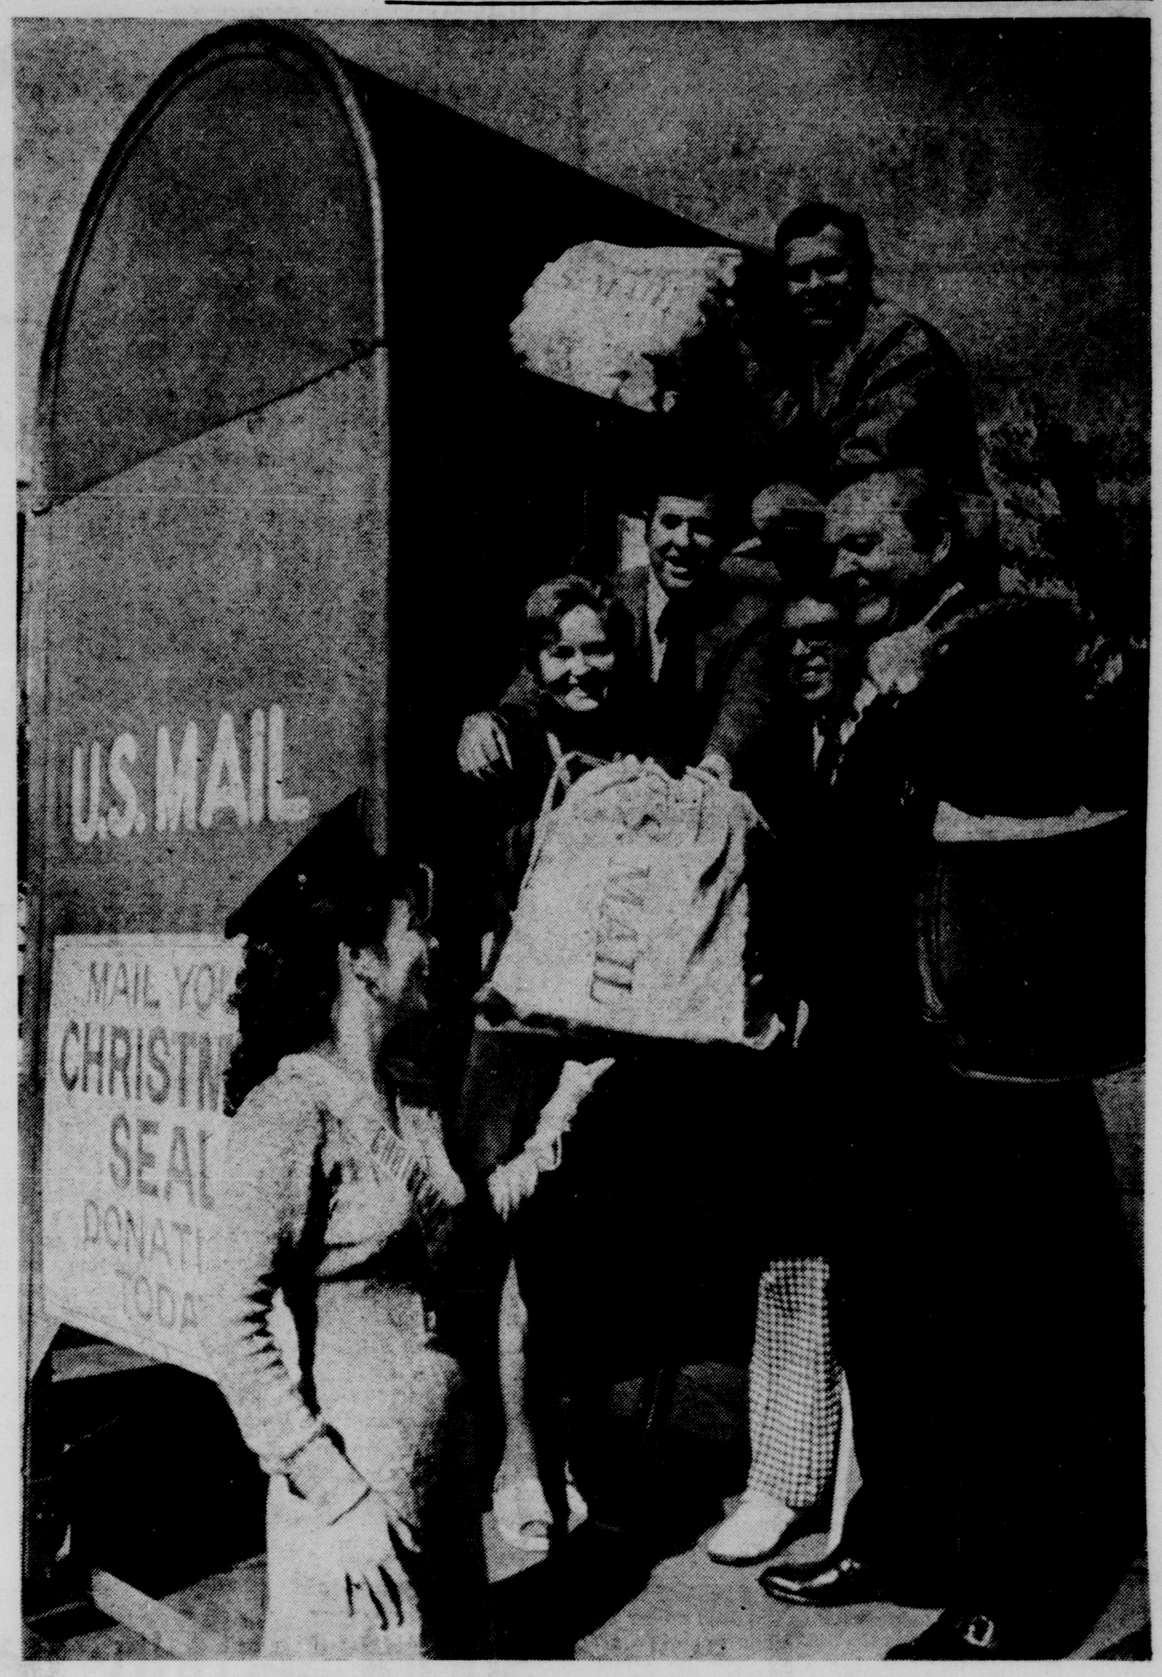
The board also considered an inquiry from the Cucamonga School District of the availability of classroom space which the district might lease. Cucamonga district is now on double sessions at Cucamonga Elementary School while new facilities are under construction.

The board indicated that it would be interested in renting classrooms if the principals of the affected schools were in agreement with the plan. Jones noted that the proceeds from such a plan would be available for the use of the school renting the classroom space.

A report by Everett Hilliard, assistant director of pupil personnel services, on the results of district testing last year showed the district near expectancy levels. The tests are designed to provide information regarding entry levels of kindergarten and first grade pupils and achievement of all students in grades one through eight.

Entering skills, according to the tests, of the first grade pupils are below the state average as is verbal ability of pupils at the sixth grade level.

District achievement scores above the second grade level were lower than the publishers' norms and there was a slightly increasing deficit for each successive grade level. However, Hilliard reported, the relationship between ability scores and achievement scores indicates that district achievement scores are near expectancy levels.



MAILING CHRISTMAS SEAL DONATIONS

Launching the local Christmas Seal drive are, from left Pamela Lambine, Christmas Seal princess; Bertye Smith, Claremont Mayor; Jim Lough, San Dimas mayor; Charles Bader, Pomona councilman; Mike Morales La Verne mayor and Joe Busch, Los Angeles County district attorney, who is drive co-chairman. They are standing beside the oversized mailbox which will be used as a float in a number of city parades.

KEN WOLFGANG

'Singapore' film slated for forum

Film producer Ken Wolfgang will give an illustrated lecture titled "Singapore" at the 7:45 p.m. Monday meeting of the Pomona Forum in the Education Center auditorium.

Wolfgang produces educational, industrial and natural history films. He is an associate director of World Tapes, Inc., a nonprofit organization designed to create better understanding between all nations through the audio-visual media.

In "Singapore," Wolfgang helps the Western tourist discover the excitement and mystery of the Orient.

He shows the modern city of Kuala with its many races and religions, the rubber plantations, Penang, Fort Cornwallis, a Chinese clan house and the snake temple.

Wolfgang illustrates the daily life and problems of a Malaysian family, and shows river highways and rice harvests.

Husband is arrested on 2 assault charges

Larry Earl Coleman, 33, accused of firing several shots at his estranged wife and another woman as they left work in Pomona Nov. 6, was arrested Thursday afternoon in his hospital room on a warrant charging him with two counts of assault with a deadly weapon.

Coleman, 2958 Gramercy Place, shot himself in the stomach that day, climaxing the fracas on the parking lot of Brockway Glass Co., 1331 E. Philadelphia St., investigators reported. He had been in Pomona Valley Community Hospital since the incident.

Thursday he was arrested on a warrant signed by Pomona Municipal Court Judge James H. Piatt. It charged him with offenses against his wife, 26-year-old Barbara Kathleen Coleman of Claremont, and another Brockway employe, Patricia Ann Long of Pomona.

After his arrest, Coleman was taken by private ambulance to the jail ward of County-USC Medical Center where he was held in lieu of $7,500 bail.

Coleman, a telephone installer, faces arraignment next week in Pomona Municipal Court.

Police said they put off arresting the suspect until his condition had improved.

Mrs. Coleman told police that her husband had made threatening telephone calls to her, warning her to return to their home.

Police said that on the day of the incident, Coleman fired several shots at Mrs. Coleman as she and others were leaving work, then fired a shot at Mrs. Long and pointed the weapon, a .38-caliber revolver, at others before getting into Mrs. Coleman's car and shooting himself.

Building activity for city mostly fixing up, adding on Additions and alterations to existing structures accounted for most building permits in Pomona last month.

Officials reported issuing 197 permits for additions and alterations to residential structures, reflecting a total valuation of $202,725, and seven permits for additions and alterations to nonresidential buildings, for a combined valuation of $77,436.

For the month, building officials issued 229 permits for a total valuation of $341,025. This boosted the 10 month total to 1,738 permits and a valuation of $6,676,328.

This compares with October 1973, with 144 permits and a valuation of $489,945. The 10 month total then was 1,477 permits and a valuation of $14,-221,756.

Major projects last month included miscellaneous nonstructural alterations at Casa Colina, valued at $25,000; a patio at the Sacred Heart School, $6,000; and a car wash and canopy at 1805 N. Indian Hill Blvd., $33,000.

Other permits by categories include:

Residential dwellings demolished or moved, three, $1,127; repair of parking garages, two, $1,575; all other buildings, one, $33,000; swimming pools, two, $8,200; all other permits, nine, $3,975; signs, six, $12,387; and nonresidential structures demolished, two, $600.

Slight Edison refund coming

In these days of rising utility costs, it may come as a shock to customers of the Southern California Edison Co. to learn they will soon get a refund.

Officials said they will return $1.6 million to their customers as a result of a refund by natural gas suppliers.

For the residential customer, this will amount to 17 cents, which will be included as a credit in electric bills for November and December.

And for commercial, industrial and agricultural users, their refunds will be in varying amounts depending on electricity usage.

The refunds result from a reduction in past charges to customers by natural gas suppliers, officials explained. Edison uses natural gas suppliers, officials explained. Edison uses natural gas when available as boiler fuel at electric generating stations.

During the past few years, the amount of natural gas available for producing electricty has declined. And for this year, natural gas will fulfill an estimated 24 per cent of the total fuel needs at oil and gas generating stations, they explained.

And by 1975, natural gas is expected to only supply 8 per cent of the same fuel requirements.

Opinion

One good dollar deserves another

A familiar and effective way of bringing home the nation's economic situation is to compare the value of the dollar with what it was in some other, presumably more prosperous, year.

According to one recent analysis, for example, in the life-time of half of all Americans — those born since 1946 — the value of the dollar has shrunk by 60 cents. At this rate, the "1946 dollar" will be worth only 16 cents in another 28 years.

To put it another way, to have the same purchasing power as today's "40-cent dollar," a person making $7,200 today would have to earn $18,000 in the year 2002. A $30 pair of shoes will cost $75. The average family's weekly food budget will rise from $62 to $152, and so on.

It could happen sooner than 28 years if the present rate of inflation were to continue unchecked.

The dollar would look even more minuscule, however, if we were to compare it with its 1939 counterpart, as we used to do back when inflation was a minor, and some thought a necessary and welcome, factor in the economy.

But how many people would like to return to 1939? For all the ravages of inflation, most Americans are far better off than they were in 1939, or 1946 for that matter, the "40-cent dollar" notwithstanding.

This is not to minimize inflation, which has grown to such dimensions that, as President Ford has warned, it threatens the future of all of us. It is merely to point out the fallacy of using the shrinking dollar as the only yardstick to measure where we have been and where we seem to be going.

A television set costs more than it did 10 or 20 years ago. But it's a better and more reliable set. Thirty years ago there was no television industry at all, which has given employment to tens of thousands.

For the price of three or four modern key-start, self-propelled lawnmowers, you could have bought an automobile in 1939. But many people didn't have a yard to cut back then, if they had a pushmower, much less a house on that yard filled with all kinds of appliances. Much of what we consider necessities today were undreamed of luxuries not many years ago.

Again, this is not to minimize the threat of inflation. But there is no going back to the 1939 dollar or the 1946 dollar or even to the 1973 dollar.

What is important is that we take the steps needed to maintain and safeguard the nation's basic economic strength so that the 1975 dollar or the 1990 dollar or the 2002 dollar, whatever they may be "worth" in terms of some other year, continue to enable more and more Americans to afford the good things of life.

Fun-to-take prescription

If "Sesame Street" and the "Electric Company" can teach kids the basics of language and arithmetic, will the same approach work with adults in the matter of good health habits?

The Children's Television Workshop, producers of these two highly acclaimed programs, think they will.

"Feeling Good," which has been called "the most ambitious attempt to convey health information through entertainment techniques," will premier in prime evening time on the nation's 250 public broadcasting stations on November 20.

The program is based on two years of probing American health habits. Working closely with a nationwide panel of health authorities, the producers have chosen 11 vital subjects. In the course of the 26-week series, adult viewers will be exposed to such things as the importance of breast cancer self-examination, high blood pressure checks, mild exercise, weight control, dental care and proper nutrition.

Changing unhealthy life styles is a major focus of the one-hour programs. The goal is to influence us to smoke less, drink less, eat less and exercise more and to alert us to the importance of regular medical examinations.

To encourage us to take better care of ourselves, "Feeling Good" will use a variety of TV techniques, including song, dance, documentaries and situation comedy. Top-flight entertainers will appear on the shows, along with a regular cast of talented Broadway stars.

"Feeling Good" sounds like one prescription that will be fun to take.

Involvement to improve the schools

I read Mrs. C's letter published Nov. 6. I wish to answer. Yes, there may be some racial incidents on our Pomona school campuses, but if everyone took Mrs. C's "sit back and hope it will get better" attitude, nothing would ever be resolved.

I am a junior at Pomona High School and have attended Emerson Junior High. I was reared with no racial prejudices in my home. I will admit, I am more leary of people now than I was in grade 8, but that comes with growing up and losing one's naivete. But going to Pomona High has restored my faith in people to work together for a common cause.

Pomona High had a very bad reputation three and four years ago. I am told this reputation was justified. Through the diligent efforts of teachers, students, parents, and administrators these problems of racial conflict have been resolved. I'm sure none of this could have happened without the newly formed Parent, Teacher, Student Association. Through this organization everyone can get involved to improve the schools.

Maybe many of the 9th graders are not ready for the four year high school situation, but one of the reasons for this new structure is Proposition T (last year's tax override proposal) did not pass. Many people did not want to put money into what they consider to be "bad" schools, so they don't get involved and the quality of our school system goes down.

My advice to Mrs. C and others with her attitude is: drop some of your own pride and support your schools; if you get involved with your PTA, these problems are on their way to being solved. After all what can you lose? Your one dollar membership dues? — Nanci Feldman, Pomona.

Dream improvements

I would just like to tell you that I think of the work they did on Indian Hill Blvd.

I think it was the biggest waste of money. It seems to me that these people who decided to do this just sit around and dream up ways to spend money.

Eight years ago Cahuilla Park was supposed to be built up like a regular park. Seven years ago they mailed maps to people who lived around the park of what the park was going to look like.

Now they have done a few things but not half of what they said. Instead, they spend money on a bunch of things that are really not necessary.—Judy Palmire, Claremont.

Social Security headed for trouble

WASHINGTON — For almost 40 years, Social Security has been the federal government's most popular and least questioned program. But now signs of trouble, even crisis, both fiscal and political, are on the horizon.

Over the years, benefits have increased steadily, in size and variety, to the point where a retired couple is now entitled to a maximum of $7,317 a year. Under present plans, this will continue to rise steadily.

Throughout this period of expansion, a continuing surplus in the Social Security fund has given the program the facade of "insurance." A favorable ratio of active workers to retirees has enabled the cost to be spread around enough to make the tax burden relatively painless.

All this is now changing.

The worker who is about to retire probably thinks his benefits will come out of the funds he has contributed over his working life. Not so. Social Security payments come out of current taxes on those who work. Thus they depend on the continued willingness of active workers to pay.

Already, demands have been heard from organized labor for a cut in Social Security payroll taxes. As Congressmen who have always heeded labor demands for increased benefits now begin to heed demands for tax cuts, the Social Security fund could quickly evaporate.

Even if payroll taxes are allowed to grow at the planned rate, statistics indicate that within 10 years the long-time Social Security surplus will finally disappear and a deficit will emerge. To forestall insolvency would require ever higher taxes.

The picture would be worse were it not for the inequities in the treatment of people who get less than they should. Working wives and working oldsters, for instance, are becoming increasingly riled over the denial of benefits they have earned, in comparison with other recipients.

These protestors are becoming politically potent. Equitable treatment for them will sharply increase expenditures and swell either payroll taxes or the pending deficit.

Behind the Social Security crunch are these facts:

In 1950, there were 12 working taxpayers for every retired recipient, thus the bite out of each worker was painless. By 1960, that ratio had fallen to 4 to 1. It is now down to 2.5 to 1.

By the time those now entering the work force are ready to claim their Social Security benefits, there will be less than two workers to support each retiree.

In 1950, the maximum Social Security payroll tax was $45 a year. It has now soared to $722. Next year it will continue up to $841. Where both husband and wife work — if the wife's salary, say, is half the husband's — that couple will pay in $1,261 next year.

When we recall that the couple's employers pay an equal amount, an amount the couple might reasonably assume would otherwise come to them in wages or fringe benefits, their annual contribution to Social Security jumps to more than $2,500 per year.

A no-compromise Congress

WASHINGTON — Of all people, George Meany was the first post-election analyst to lay it on the line concerning the essential irresponsibility of Democratic leadership on Capitol Hill.

Given his veto-proof Congress and, if not veto-proof, at least go-to-hell Senate, the head of the AFL-CIO might have been expected to be exultant at his news conference last week. But he wasn't, because Meany is a cold-eyed realist who understands his Democratic politicians — a comprehension that Gerald Ford, for all his experience on the Hill, hasn't yet demonstrated as President.

Now, as we know, George Meany is interested solely in the formulation of economic programs fashioned around the idea that what's good for the AFL-CIO is good for the country. It is, therefore, instructive that, though he helped elect the new, overwhelming Democratic majority in Congress, the union chief has shrewdly determined that, unless they're prodded, Democratic leaders aren't likely to be as interested in programs for 1975 as campaign issues for 1976.

Naturally, Meany delivered the prod. In blunt terms he doubted the sincerity of the Democrats in their approach to the country's economic problems. Mike Mansfield & Co. have the power to enact the specific wage-and-price control program they've urged on the President, said Meany. So why haven't they?

The union chief's answer was that congressional Democrats would rather pass broad legislation giving President Ford the power to implement controls, then sit back and criticize the White House, whichever way Ford chooses to go.

That, of course, is exactly the game the Democrats have been playing, and can be predicted to play with even greater vigor in the coming year.

Meany's blunt talk the day after election was in sharp contrast to the sounds emanating from the White House along about the same time. No sooner had the shock of the Democrats' midterm sweep registered than the Ford administration was throwing down not a gauntlet, but a prayer rug, in obeisance to Mansfield and a newly truculent Speaker Carl Albert.

On the morning after, the post-election atmosphere around 1600 Pennsylvania was rife with hand-wringing statements concerning the need for conciliation and compromise between the Republican chief executive and Democratic Congress.

To be sure, there were some suggestions that this conciliatory line was only a presidential ploy. Ford's aides indicate that his conciliation-and-compromise theme was meant to set the new Democratic majority up for a 1976 kill.

According to this thesis, a Democratic Congress will get the blame for failing to solve the country's economic problems between now and the next presidential election. Ford having extended the branch of conciliation and been rejected, he would then be able to villainize an uncooperative "do-nothing" Congress two years hence.

So say the President's aides. And while I don't doubt their sincerity, it seems to me that a large amount of self-deception is contained in that thesis. For if they believe that out of a plaintive White House plea for compromise will emerge a Truman-like pattern of combat and victory over a recalcitrant Congress, the people around the President are only fooling themselves.

Indeed, Gerald Ford is talking compromise because, as a product of the House system, he is a compromiser. The President would have done far better, in my opinion, to kick of his relations with the new Congress issuing a Meany-like statement laying it on the line regarding the nature of the Democratic game. But talk of conciliation and compromise is Gerald Ford's instinctive, not merely a tactical, preference.

Thus, on yet another count, the Ford-Truman parallel that current White House staffers are talking up is less than meets the eye. Harry Truman didn't seek compromise with what he called the "do-nothing" 80th Congress. He sought issues. Gerald Ford, on the other hand, beginning in January will be dealing with a no-compromise Congress which can be expected to find its model not in the 80th but the 72nd Congress.

That was the Democratic majority on Capitol Hill elected as a result of the economic troubles of 1930. For two years it let Herbert Hoover, who called plaintively for conciliation and compromise, stew in the economic juices. Then those game-playing Democrats put a member of their own party into the White House by running against what they portrayed as a do-nothing President.

Just in jest

How times have changed!

In 1904 a Pomona newspaper commented: "One of the most inconsiderate mortals on this queer earth is the man who insists on getting his hair cut on Saturday night when the barber shop is full of customers waiting to be shaved."

Well, with all the long-haired men there are in this town today, I'm sure many a Pomona barber would welcome that sort of "inconsideration" with open arms. — Actually it's amazing what some of our tonsorial artists are doing these days in order to drum up a bit of that old time rush hour business. Why, some of them are even offering "geometric haircuts." — So what's a geometric haircut? Shame on you! If you'd spent more time doing your mathematics homework and less time growing hair, you'd know that the square of the hypotenuse of a right angled haircut is equal to the sum of the squares of the other two sides.

Is detente peace on Russia's terms?

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — One would think the federal government had learned its lesson from the Russian grain deal of last year. Those U.S.-taxpayer-subsidized shipments bit into so much of our grain we have faced shortages ever since. The shortages have been a principal cause of high food prices — with a domino effect on other consumer goods.

It seemed for a time this year that we had learned our lesson. President Ford stepped in to limit grain shipments to the USSR and developed a control system of sorts. But it turns out that we didn't learn much after all. For with the full concurrence of this government and in the name of detente, U.S. industry today is making a series of similar deals with the Russians in high technology and the advanced industrial processes which are the life blood of this country's economic and military security.

The know-how we are preparing to sell the Russians at cut-rate prices and with subsidized loans centers in computers, advanced electronics, sophisticated chemical processes and other fields which provide the industrial and research and development base for military strength. When the Strategic Arms Limitation agreement was signed, U.S. technological superiority was advertised as the basic reason we need not match the Russian strategic buildup, megaton for megaton. If the Russians are able, with the assistance of this American know-how, to match us in military technology and exceed us in tonnage, they will assuredly be less cautious in the Middle East, Asia and West Europe, which has shown little ability to stand up to outside pressure.

Leaving military considerations aside, the industrial development assistance itself poses dangers similar to those of the unfortunate grain deal. When the Russians have the money, they buy in large gulps. Though their purchases may be a very small proportion of total output, they can have tremendous economic impact.

Russia's five-year plans provide for industrial expansion in giant steps with mammoth projects interspaced by lulls. There is not the constant upgrading and rebuilding which characterizes American industry and which normally — but not always as we see so today clearly — keeps our economy on a fairly even course. When U.S.-Soviet trade reaches the expected levels as a result of U.S. investments and subsidies, these tremendous Russian purchases in several fields for one, two or three years or so, followed by lulls or shifts to other fields, are likely to accentuate our cycles of boom and recession. The Russian on-again off-again buying could thus turn mild recessions into depressions and transform welcome booms into inflationary explosions.

Now these risks might be well worth taking if there were evidence the commercial, industrial and political intercourse might result in a change within Russia. But there is clearly no evidence that this might happen.

In the past when U.S. aid was greatest and American technicians moved into the USSR in numbers, Russia's rulers clamped down more tightly on dissent. News reports out of Russia today indicate the Kremlin is once again moving toward increased repression as a means of offsetting any American influence our aid or our visiting engineers may engender. One prominent Soviet dissenter has warned that U.S. assistance will be counter productive without strictly-enforced Soviet guarantee on internal freedom.

In summary, the pursuit of detente with the Soviet Union is being pushed with more fervor than reason.

Trainees are paid for their work at piece rates.

Riverside Community Workshop offers similar training closer to your friend's home but her son is too young to participate by one year.

Also, the Riverside workshop charges a fee, a prohibitive factor for a family with 10 children.

My husband's car broke down as a result of a broken water hose on Freeway 605 in the vicinity of Baldwin Park at 8:30 p.m. one night last June.

We belong to the National Automobile Club and had paid $22 extra for the club's towing service.

My husband called the Azusa office and was referred to a towing service in Covina.

He was told there was no garage open but his car could be towed in with overnight charges. No one would come out unless he agreed to that arrangement.

He called a friend who towed his car home.

We had just paid the $22 on June 10. We wrote to the club demanding our money back but our letter was unanswered.

We belonged to the club 11 years. — Mrs. G. C., La Verne.

Ruth-Alice Irving, district manager of the club, told us that she hadn't received your letter to the club and hadn't been able to find it although past correspondence had been thoroughly checked.

Since you have joined another club, she said, your membership will be canceled and a refund will be made when you and your husband turn in your membership cards.

She apologized to you, saying the club is trying to give its members the best service possible and regrets incidents of the kind your husband experienced.

Teen-age daughter wants to confront unfaithful father, give him advice

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a girl 15 years of age and I have a brother who is 12. One night last week when Dad phoned at 5:30 and said he wouldn't be home to dinner because he had a business meeting, Mom confided in us—said she just couldn't keep it to herself any longer. It seems dad has been having an affair with a woman he works with.

Now that I know about it I have turned very cool toward my father. I think it is just rotten what he's doing to mom. My brother doesn't say much but he's too young to understand.

Dad is 42 and mom is two years older but she sure doesn't look her age. The woman at work is 35. Mom made my brother and me promise that we wouldn't tell dad that she told us but I'm just about to bust. I think if I talked to him it might help. Please, Ann, under the circumstances wouldn't it be the right thing to do? Hurry your advice. I'm—About to Explode

Dear A.: Explode to your school counselor, or a clergyman, but don't betray your mother. It's bad enough that she betrayed your father.

I sympathize with your mom, but she should have discussed this mess with a professional and left her children out of it. Telling you was her way of punishing your father and it was a foolish thing to do.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: That letter from the widow who needed friends in her hour of darkness was very sad. She complained that after the funeral so many people came up to her and mouthed that tired, empty phrase, "If there's anything we can do, please call."

I have been such a friend, standing by with a heart full of love, waiting for the call that never came? So I made the call myself not long ago and asked, "How is everything? Are you all right?" The answer: "Oh, everything is just fine," etc. Even though I knew everything was not "just fine" I couldn't impose further.

Now I am on the other side. It took a lot of courage to tell the truth and say, "Things are NOT good. I'm very lonely. I need your love and companionship. Please, come to the house for supper—or I'll come to yours."

They thanked me for being honest and helped me through some terrible times. But I had to let them know I needed their help.

Love is God's greatest gift to man. There are times when we must reach out for it and not be too selfish to let others know we need them. This is not a sign of weakness. It's a sign of being human.—No Longer Alone

Near No Longer: My thanks for a beautiful lesson in living and giving. So many of us fail to realize that the refusal to allow our friends to help us is a peculiar kind of selfishness. Everyone needs the chance to give.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 26 and my husband is 27. I am almost sure I am pregnant and we are very happy about it. The problem is that I want to go to the obstetrician that my sisters went to. They both raved about the wonderful care Dr. T. gave them and I have a lot of confidence in him. My husband wants me to go to his uncle who is a G.P. because it won't cost us anything.

I am not particularly fond of his uncle but money IS important. What do you say?—P.G. Ella

Dear Ella: Save on something else. It's important that an expectant mother go to the doctor SHE wants. This decision should be up to you.

Is alcoholism ruining your life? Know the danger signals and what to do. Read the booklet, "Alcoholism—Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 35 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Students of English ain't no good

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN

"Willie, have you done your history lesson?"

"Naw, teacher, I ain't had time for nuttin' but me English."

This illuminating exchange came to mind recently when I learned that almost half the freshmen at UC Berkeley flunked their English composition this fall and have been hurled into the outer darkness of "bonehead English," where there is wailing and gnashing of teeth. Bonehead English, stylishly termed "composition and rhetoric" or "communication arts" at various colleges, teaches the ill-prepared freshmen what they should have learned in high school.

The Question for the Day: How do thousands of students graduate from high school and gain admittance to college without the ability to write a one-page composition with a minimum of grammatical, syntactic and spelling errors, and a modicum of organized thought and expression?

At the University of Houston, 60 per cent of the freshmen fail the first three essays they write. Jesse Hartley, director of freshman English there, says "Students can't carry through an idea in writing; they have no idea what a paragraph is; they are unable to string details together in logical sequence."

This serious deficiency in our youth was never more evident than during the student revolts of the past decade when numerous misspellings and poor grammar were noted in protest placards, anti-war signs, ransom notes and banners hung in college football stadiums.

"The fundamentals are not being taught properly in secondary schools," grumbles Robert Hosman, chairman of the University of Miami English department. "The Scholastic Aptitude Test and College Board scores across the country have shown a considerable lowering of verbal ability."

This decline is evident even at such august institutions as Harvard University where all undergraduates are required to take a 12-week course in expository writing. English professor Gwynne Evans says, "We try to teach them to write simple, clear sentences that say what they mean and then arrange those sentences in some orderly fashion. Most of them don't know how to do that when they come here."

This outrageous discipline requiring a student to be able to write coherently sends students up the wall.

"It nearly drove me crazy," said a Harvard freshie. "I tried to write what I was really feeling and I got all these irrelevant comments about grammar all over the pages. I ran through the streets of Cambridge weeping."

I think Harvard better soft-pedal composition and let the kids "do their thing" and "tell it like it is" before the streets of Cambridge are a-wash.

THE DOCTOR COMMENTS

Crohn's disease affects intestines

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am very anxious to find out as much as I can about Crohn's disease. My daughter has this and there is very little information about it.

She is quite depressed after taking Predinsone treatment. Is this considered a serious illness? Can it ever be corrected or does one always suffer with it? Can a person lead a normal life? At this point she cannot hold down a full-time job as she never knows when the pain will come and has had to give up two jobs because of this.

DEAR READER — Fortunately this is a fairly rare disease. It is common enough, though, that President Eisenhower had it for many years before he was operated upon during his Presidency. The obstruction he developed then was a complication and usually one occurs after years of problems. The disease is also called regional enteritis.

The common form is an inflammation of the terminal region of the small intestine where it joins the colon in the lower right part of the abdomen. The inflamed part is swollen and may cause a mass. Its location causes right lower abdominal pain and the attack resembles acute appendicitis in many respects.

We do not know what causes the disease, even though its characteristis are well known. No virus, bacteria or other common abormal process has been identified that produces the inflammation.

That makes it hard to treat. The treatment varies with the severity of the disease and how it affects a person. The usual features of the disease are the lower abdominal pain and diarrhea. Usually the diarrhea is mild. Fatigue and weight loss may occur, particularly if the patient isn't careful to get enough nourishment. Problems in absorbing food from the diseased intestine may cause vitamin and mineral deficiencies and require more attention to getting enough protein in the diet. Continued small losses of blood may also cause an iron deficiency anemia.

The nature of the disease is to have periods of attacks and periods of remission. Sometgimes a person may go for years without a recurrence of the problem. Continued medical supervision is important.

Yes, many patients with this problem do live a normal life. Eisenhower was certainly one good example, well known to almost everybody. This should encourage your daughter.

You get different answers from physicians depending upon their experience. Dr. Crohn himself thinks medical management will be adequate in 90 per cent of the cases and perhaps only 10 per cent need surgery, as did Eisenhower.

There are some general suggestions. Be sure to eat a good diet. If there is an element of obstruction avoid roughage, bulk foods and since milk sometimes triggers an attack it is well to avoid milk. But it will be important to use a substitute for calcium and protein (try one of the nonmilk products used for babies). Don't get over tired.

Just keep in mind that a lot can be done to control the disease. It may even go into remission on its own, and many people have led good, productive and happy lives with the same problem.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of The Progress-Bulletin, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on balanced diet, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for the "Balanced Diet" booklet

Nostalgia makes Mother great cook

Am asked why a husband tends to talk with such nostalgia about his mom's cooking. That's explainable. Everything tastes better when you're hungry. And rarely, if ever, are you hungrier than you were as a growing boy on the way home to dinner. Hold on now, I didn't just make this up. It's the conclusion of a team of Southern California dieticians who gave some thought to the matter, though possibly not a whole lot.

Q. "ALL RIGHT, Louie, let's see you make a 6 out of the Roman numeral IX by adding one continuous line."

A. That's elderly, sir. Just draw an S — that's a continuous line, no? — in front of said numeral IX.

LIGHTNING

Once made the claim that nobody killed by lightning ever saw the bolt that hit him. But a customer with a long memory inquires how many such victims are interviewed to find that out. All right, all right, none. But it's a fact, anyway. Lightning travels 30,000 times as fast as a bullet. Faster than the eye can see, certainly.

U.S. Navy task force sent to Indian Ocean

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy Thursday sent a carrier task force into the Indian Ocean —a move which in the past has irritated a number of nations, particularly India.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was in India last week where officials made clear New Delhi's displeasure with Navy activities in the Indian Ocean.

A Pentagon announced that the carrier USS Constellation, carrying 5,000 crewmen and about 80 warplanes, had sailed from Singapore Thursday into the Indian Ocean accompanied by three destroyers and a supply ship.

The last carrier task force in the Indian Ocean was ordered there during the Mideast War 13 months ago. It remained six months.

Many of the states in the Indian Ocean have publicly sought to bar both Soviet and American vessels and make the ocean "a zone of peace."

However, Deputy Defense Secretary William P. Clements, following a trip to the Far East, recently told newsmen that officials of several countries told him privately they really wanted the U.S. Navy to remain in the area as a counter to the Soviets.

BERLIN (UPI) — Robert S. is 12 years old and likes to play with cars. So he steals them.

Police said the boy, who was not identified, got his 40th vehicle theft and speeding charge Monday.

The police report said after stealing the car the boy "tried to force police cars off the road, tried to ram them, went through red lights and drove over sidewalks."

Recent tests have revealed that dogs as companions have been helpful to schizophrenic patients. In one study, 20 dogs "chosen for their warmth and friendliness" were given to 20 patients who did not respond to conventional therapy. Of the 18 patients who accepted a dog, all showed improvement and some cases were discharged, The World Almanac notes.

4 policy choices in energy problem

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Energy Administration spelled out the policy choices for solving energy problems: produce more, consume less, do nothing, or act only in an emergency.

The Ford administration is trying the "consume less" route.

The FEA published a 1,000-page guide for planning "Project Independence," the drive for essential self-sufficiency in fuels by 1985.

The outgoing energy administrator, John C. Sawhill, said the report is not a plan to eliminate imports. "We do not think zero imports would be a desirable or achievable goal for United States energy policy," Sawhill said. "International considerations, domestic energy realities and economic common sense may all argue for a policy in which the United States continues to import some of ies oil."

The new energy chief, Interior Secretary Rogers Morton, said in a separate meeting, "The only short term tool we have in the immediate future is a cut in demand." He said it should be voluntary, through persuasion and some incentives, rather than requirements.

"There is no intent on the part of the President to implement rationing or a type of total control," Morton said.

The report assessed four major policy avenues, on the basis of world oil prices that stay high or that are cut:

—Doing nothing. If oil stays at $11 a barrel, demand would increase only slightly, the FEA predicted. But it said it is more likely that oil prices will drop. If they got to around $7, demand would grow and the nation would probably need 12.4 million barrels of foreign oil every day. Half would be "insecure," so that a year-long embargo could cost the nation $205 billion.

—Boosting production. These include multiplying leasing, opening military reserves and speeding up nuclear licensing. "These actions, which are generally economic, could be viable at $11 world oil, but may require guarantees if oil were to be at lower prices," the report said.

—Cutting demand. If oil prices stayed at $11 a barrel, conservation alone would fall short by more than 1 million barrels a day of getting free of imports, the report predicted. But if prices dropped, conservation could be expected to succeed even less and thus to require even more from the "supply side" to reach Project Independence goals.

— Using only emergency measures. (Because the FEA and Morton both discounted gasoline rationing this section spoke only of emergency reserves and curtailments). For example, the FEA said: "Emergency storage could be built to eliminate vulnerability to any level of insecure imports resulting from any other combination of supply and conservation actions at either price ($7 or $11)."

Of in-laws, outlaws in 74-year marriage

HOOD RIVER, Ore. (UPI) — Edward and Gertrude Dunham reminisced this week about their 74 years of married life, and his memories came up about outlaws and a "little, readheaded, curlyheaded girl."

Dunham remembered feeding outlaws Cole Younger and Frank James at the lunch counter and bakery he owned in Boliver, Mo., where he and Gertrude were married Nov. 12, 1900.

"I served them a good steak, a nice sized rib steak," he said. "Two bits, the meal cost.

"Frank didn't have much to say, but Cole would laugh and talk. Everybody 'round that region worshipped those fellows."

The Dunhams were married at age 18 because her father sold his store and was planning to move the family 200 miles away.

"I'd known her ever since she was a little, red-headed, curlyheaded girl," he said. "That red curly hair got me, I guess. I don't know what else it could have been."

Mrs. Dunham and her husband moved across country in an emigrant train in 1906. They began a homestead in the Moses Lake country of Washington, where they raised wheat and mules. They moved to the Spokane area in the 1920s and here two years ago .

"I started out as boss and I'm still boss," said Mrs. Dunham with a smile. "He's always telling me, 'I wish you'd quit saying that."

Group of firemen lives in fear from '73 contact with poison gas

BELMONT, Calif. (UPI) — Twenty-four firemen and their families have been living for more than a year in frightening uncertainty about what will happen to them as the result of contact with a gas so poisonous that teargas is mixed with it to mask the invisible dangers.

Two of the men have already been forced to retire with serious lung ailments.

Two more have been put on sick leave because they have brain damage that causes dizziness and fainting.

At least 15 other firemen have experienced physical problems since that day in 1973 when they went out on what seemed to be a routine call for help.

"It wasn't any fire at all," says Belmont Fire Chief Richard Weare.

Walter Nunes, who had a small paint shop, had found a small unmarked tank he thought would make a fine fireplace. He took it to a lot near his shop and began to pry off the top.

Nunes smelled the teargas that was in the tank to warn the unwary of its more deadly contetns —methol-bromide, a powerful pest-control agent. Nunes called the fire department.

"We did everything as far as safety as we could," says chief Weare. "We called for assistance from other nearby fire departments who had chemical suits.

"We tried to plug the leak. But we started losing men. They were dropping. The hospital didn't know how to treat them until we knew what was in the tank."

A frantic search went on for hours to trace the unmarked tank, while the firemen worked to seal it up. The area was sealed off.

After the emergency was over, the firemen took off their gas masks and went home. Only gradually over the months did they realize the frightening danger they were in.

The lingering and delayed effects of methol-bromide gas poisoning hang over the heads of all of them. They undergo monthly examinations, and these have showed erratic brain waves, loss of memory and other symptoms.

Chief Weare says it is "too early" to tell what the total bill in medical care, misery and heartache will be from the unmarked small tank that would have made an attractive danish-modern fireplace.

Free legal aid available for war resisters

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Free legal assistance is available to locally convicted and sentenced draft offenders wishing to take advantage of President Ford's clemency offer, the County Bar Association said Tuesday.

Warren Christopher, association president, said letters will be sent to almost 1,500 men convicted in the local federal district during the Vietnam War calling attention to the Jan. 31, 1975 deadline for accepting the amnesty terms.

All are entitled to apply for clemency and perhaps a pardon, Christopher said.

HAWAIIAN HOLIDAY—From left, Lisa Michael, Mark Liles and George Saelzler are getting ready for the annual PFA carnival at Chaparral School in Claremont. The carnival will be held Saturday from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and will feature a boutique, Waikiki burgers, luau tacos, drinks and an assortment of game booths. Mrs. Donald Vandergraft and Patty Liles are coordinating plans for the event.

Vet pensioners must report income earlier

Recipients of Veterans Administration pension checks will receive income questionnaires that must be returned by Jan. 1, 1975, warned regional office Director John G. Miller.

In past years the questionnaire deadline was Jan. 15. The new deadline has been set to expedite the processing of January pension checks.

The law requires the VA to mail questionnaires to veterans on nonservice-connected pension rolls, widows and widowers of veterans receiving pensions based on the nonservice-connected death of a spouse and certain parents who receive monthly checks because of the service-connected death of a veteran or a member of the service.

Miller said that most pensioners must file questionnaires each year. Those 72 and over who have been on pension rolls during the last two years are exempt from routine reporting. However, they must report income changes when they occur.

He also pointed out that some beneficiaries 72 and older who normally are exempt will receive questionnaires this year because of cost-of-living increases in their annuities.

More than one million persons receive pensions from the VA.

Now you know

CARACAS (UPI) — Venezuela gets its name from Venice, Italy.

When 16th century explorer Alonso de Ojeda saw Indians living over the water on stilt houses on Lake Maracaibo, he thought of Venice and called the country Venezuela, which means Little Venice.

Valley man advances in insurance job

John S. Godinho Jr. of Chino has been promoted to area supervisor by the United National Life Insurance Society of San Francisco.

In his new position he will supervise representatives of the company in Los Angeles, Orange, Ventura and San Bernardino counties.

Godinho started as field representative in October 1969 and advanced to special field representative in July 1971.

He won the firm's Service Award for 1973 and has qualified to become a member of its Million Dollar Club.

Economist will speak at Demo club meeting

Sidney Blumner, an economist, will be speaker at the Eleanor Roosevelt Democratic Club luncheon meeting Tuesday at Buffums, Pomona.

His topic will be: "What Is a Democratic Response to the Republican Solution to Inflation."

Another speaker will be Mary Harper, one of the two delegates elected from the 35th Congressional District to attend the Democratic Party Conference next month in Kansas City.

She is political action director of the Southern Conference of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and a member of both the Eleanor Roosevelt and the Frances Reed Democratic clubs.

Luncheon reservations may be made by phoning 621-2452 or 626-0089.

Valley relief group off on another Honduras mission

Mercy Airlift's DC-3 cargo plane is in Honduras again with relief supplies.

The airlift is a department of World Gospel Crusades, which has headquarters in Upland. Departures are from Ontario International Airport.

Shortly before taking off for Honduras this week, C. Mervin Russell, general director and chief pilot for the Mercy Airlift, told the purpose for the flight.

"The big cargo planes have now ceased to thunder their way into San Pedro Sula and Tegucigalpa with their mammoth loads of food and medicine," he said.

"News media no longer scurry around the countryside to photograph swollen rivers, destroyed houses and dead bodies.

"But now, six weeks after the ravages of Hurricane Fifi, needs of Honduras go on. Thus, we are compelled to return to this little republic with our load of high protein foods and seed for a new crop."

On Sept. 23 Mercy Airlift flew a load of food and medicine to Honduras and was requested to remain for two weeks to assist with air distribution of supplies throughout the country.

Russell and his crew flew 33 missions, delivering more than 200,000 pounds of supplies and transporting 264 refugees.

Again Mercy Airlift will remain in Honduras for several days to help distribute additional commodities that have arrived by boat.

Preschool takes on a new name

The Kommunity Kids Nursery School, formerly known as the Little Folk Day Nursery, announced its name change recently.

The preschool is open to valley children 2 to 5, according to Robert King, director. The activities and learning experiences include art, music, reading and math readiness, field trips, snacks and a hot lunch.

Located at the New Gethsemane Church of God in Christ, 177 W. Monterey Ave., Pomona, the nondenominational school is open Monday through Friday, 6:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. It is licensed by the state as a nonprofit corporation.

Besides Mrs. King, the school is staffed by three teachers and two aides.

Applications are now available at the school for enrollment.

Word is out: beware gold bricks, spies!

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Beware of Gold Bricks:

The secret service is gearing up for bogus gold bricks and coins when the 40-year ban on the sale and purchase of gold is lifted at the end of the year. The secret service, whose primary responsibility is the protection of the president, vice president, former presidents and their families and a few top officials, also is charged with investigating counterfeiting of currency and coins. For years, the service has been hunting down American illegal gold hoarders and smugglers and purveyors of gold —even if the gold was the real McCoy. The role changes when brokers and banks put certified bars and strips on sale in the open market to meet an expected gold rush by Americans who want bullion as an investment or inflation hedge. Vast amounts are expected to be involved and counterfeiters are sure to be firing up bogus ingots for a killing.

Spying is Big Business:

The modest surface success of detente with the Soviet Union has muted "spy scares" for the last few years. But FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley is now beginning to speak out about a "four-fold" increase in the number of Soviet bloc agents roaming the United States. Any significant temperature drop in the U.S.-Soviet climate during the current visit to Moscow by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger would bolster Kelley's blunt hints that he needs 250 more agents to cope with the "tremendous" increase in spies from Russia and its East European allies.

Chines Visitors Expected:

Look for a long-delayed visit to the United States by a delegation from the China Council for the Promotion of International Trade (CCPIT) to take place fairly soon. CCPIT officials made a commitment a year ago to send a delegation to visit industrial plants and meet with marketing executives. The American hosts, National Council for U.S.-China Trade, expected the group by last spring at the latest. The internal political struggle, among other things, delayed the trip. The Chinese have been given some fairly blunt hints of impatience on the American side and there are signs they are taking the hints.

Secret War:

The Philippines' martial law government has not announced it officially but Manila-based correspondents have learned that about 20 combat battalions or approximately 20,000 men are deployed in the Mindanao-Sulu region to cope with the continuing Moslem secessionist rebellion there. Some educated guesses put the strength of the armed dissidents at more than 10,000 men. Since the rebellion heated up two years ago with the proclamation of martial law by President Ferdinand E. Marcos, unofficial estimates of casualties in the fighting are in the neighborhood of 3,500 killed in action —3,000 on the rebel side and about 500 for the government.

'Herbigation' may replace man with hoe

PALO ALTO, Calif. (UPI) — A growing number of farmers are mixing weed killer with their irrigation water in an effort to replace the old fashioned hoe.

A relatively new technique, herbigation, is seen by advocates as a technological step toward slashing food production and labor costs on the nation's 59-million acres of irrigated farm land, most of it in California, Texas, Nebraska, Colorado and Idaho.

At a recent symposium, a pioneer researcher, Prof. Paul E. Fischbach of the University of Nebraska, called herbigation the newest weapon in the farmer's historic struggle against the world's most expensive plant —the weed.

Fischbach believes herbicides that inhibit germination of unwanted vegetation have the greatest potential in the new method.

"What's most significant about herbigation is that while the practice is new, it probably is the most efficient and precise method of incorporating herbicides into the soil that we know of," Fischbach said.

"This is particularly important in irrigated farming because weed growth is considerably more profuse and troublesome than on dryland farming. In fact, (plain) water applied on cropland can benefit and nourish weed seed more readily than crop seed germination."

Herbigation can be used with any system delivering irrigation water, from sprinklers to pipes, he said.

"But automated center-pivot sprinklers, solid set sprinklers and automatic surface irrigation systems lend themselves best to herbigation," he believes.

"A disadvantage of herbigation is the possibility of ground water pollution if the proper antipollution devices are not installed on the irrigation pumping equipment," he said.

"Some of the potential hazards are water back-flowing through the chemical injection system causing the chemical supply tank to overflow. And irrigation pumping plants may shut down from mechanical or electrical failures on the irrigation system, but injection equipment could continue operating.

"A lack of a check valve on the irrigation line may result in the mixture of water-and-chemical siphoning back into the irrigation well, polluting the groundwater.

"The pollution hazard to groundwater can be avoided by having the proper equipment and hookup to the irrigation system."

The symposium also was told by Dr. Robert H. Callihan of the University of Idaho that while many growers are already using the method, "there is still insufficient data and much research work to be done."

"For example," he said, "research has not adequately established whether application in irrigation requires a different rate of herbicide than conventional application."

But Fischbach said herbigation "should be considered a significant advance in farm technology . . . greater farm output, more food production and a certain step forward in meeting the critical demands now being placed on U.S. agriculture."

Company pays $856,000 for recycling cans

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — More than 143 million all-aluminum beverage cans were recycled by Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Corp. in the first nine months of this year, the company reported.

A spokesman said Kaiser paid more than $856,000 for cans collected through 45 Can Do recycling centers in California, Washington, Idaho and Montana. The centers pay 15 cents-a-pound for all-aluminum beverage cans, about 22 cans to the pound.

"The public is becoming more and more aware of the advantages of aluminum can recycling—of saving energy, reducing litter and conserving natural resources—and that is reflected in our soaring collection rate," said Gerri Rose, recycling program manager.

Blooms from fall to spring with planning

You often hear from nurserymen and gardeners that in California, fall is like a second spring.

Combining varieties of azaleas and camellias that will bloom at different times can keep your garden full of bright flowers from fall right through spring — like a color show for over six months of the year. This is achieved by selecting early-blooming varieties, using mid-season flowering types to follow the early birds, and finishing off the display with the late-blooming choices.

Among camellias, Sasanquas are the first to cover themselves with flowers. The willowy, glossy green leaves shrubs display delicate blossoms from autumn through early winter — announcing act one in the year's camellia show. As Sasanquas start to fade, Japonicas take over, providing the widest range of color and flower forms — from purest white to deep red and bi-color tones. Come January, the Reticulatas finish out the camellias' bright blossomed display with flowers of colossal sizes, hues and array of flower forms.

As for azaleas, if they're not supposed to bloom before spring, no one has let those Belgian Indica varieties in on the plan. The early blooming varieties have been decorating gardens throughout the state since late September. They will reach their blooming peak just before the holidays.

But as the early birds start to fade, later blooming Belgian Indicas will take over and welcome the New Year with a parade of color. Later, the magnificent Rutherfordianan hybrids, Kurume and Southern Indicas will take over and bloom successively through the end of spring.

Gardener's checklist

Holly, Pyracantha and Cotoneaster shrubs are in full berry now at nurseries. Use them in the landscape to brighten the fall and winter months.

Lawns fed in November will often stay greener in winter months despite a natural tendency to go dormant.

Most all trees and shrubs can be planted in November. Camellias and Azaleas are good bets because they will bloom in winter and spring to give you quick rewards.

Make sure newly-planted trees are solidly staked and tied against wind damage this winter.

Major pruning should wait until winter sets in, but weak or dead growth can be removed from shrubs and trees this month.

Save heat

As an energy-conserving measure, turn off radiators and registers in unused rooms and keep the doors between these rooms and other parts of the house closed. Heat that passes through floors and partitions normally will keep room temperatures above freezing.

Reshape brush

You can reshape your old paint brushes. Soak the bristles in water-soluble glue, shape and allow to dry thoroughly. Then rub the bristle tips over some coarse sandpaper to the form desired. To remove the glue, soak brush in hot water.

Do it yourself

New acrylics simplify bathroom installations

Do-it-yourself bath tub installation is easier than ever before, according to a leading plumbing fixtures designer, thanks to new, lightweight materials and the simplified installation techniques they allow.

"Durable fiberglass-bonded acrylics have eliminated much of the tedium and all of the heavy lifting and pushing once involved in bath cove renovation," said Stan Korol, designer for Borg-Warner Plumbing Products.

He explained that acrylic tubs weigh approximately 70 pounds while traditional castiron tubs can weigh 300 pounds or more. One man can easily position an acrylic tub — a nearly impossible feat with a castiron unit.

"But easy positioning isn't the only advantage provided the do-it-yourselfer by acrylics," Korol explained. "The nature of the material itself allows the molding of integral installation, comfort and safety features."

"The Borg-Warner Comfortub unit, for example, incorporates a unique tiling flange which allows subsequent installation of ceramic tile or finished wall surface material without the need for grouting along the tub edge."

Acrylic tubs offer other advantages to bathroom renovators. Since these bath tubs are secured directly to bare wall studs, they have less tendency to shift over the years. And, Korol adds, the drilling and countersinking necessary is much easier when with acrylics.

"Once installed, acrylic bath tubs can offer a variety of features including integral safety grab bars, ample ledge space and — in the case of the Comfortub unit — a convenient seat and contoured back rest," he said.

Several national building materials chains comfirm an increased incidence of do-it-yourself bath cove remodeling since the advent of acrylic units. They all agree that the new acrylic bath tubs are distinctly easier to install and have eliminated many longtime consumer fears associated with undertaking such a job alone.

Now, Korol says, almost anyone can complete a bath cove renovation exercising normal care and attention to detail. Acrylics have done for the bath what water-based paints, wood paneling and other time and worksavers did for dry room remodeling.

Prevent spatter

Autumn often means a bit of painting to spruce up the house. A big problem: paint spattering on hardware fixtures, door knobs, window panes, and everywhere else it shouldn't be. You can prevent this. Cover all adjacent areas with a thin film of petroleum jelly. Then, if you accidentally get paint on them, the coating of petroleum jelly makes removal and cleanup fast and simple. Just wipe away.

PEDALING TEACHER — Joy Bittner, 25, heads for home from Tucson's Reynold's elementary school. She's now leaving her sports car in the garage and pedaling 15 miles each way to and from school daily. Since she began biking to school last spring, she said she's covered 1,800 miles.

Coldest, most strategic real estate

Russia-Norway maneuver for arctic petroleum

OSLO (UPI)—Norway and Russia are about to start dividing up some of the world's coldest, richest and most strategic real estate.

The area in question is the Arctic Ocean north of the frozen, 11-mile frontier where Russia and Norway meet, far above the Arctic Circle.

Its geography makes it cold. The near certainty that the sea covers huge oil reserves makes it rich. And its use by the mighty Soviet Northern Fleet as an exit to the world makes it strategic.

Norway and Russia are scheduled to open talks in Moscow Nov. 25 on where the dividing line between their shares of this sea should lie. The talks could last for months, maybe years. The outcome has such obvious energy and military importance for the West that Norway's allies will be anxious onlookers.

A separate issue which must be settled, sooner or later, is the future of Spitzbergen —the forsaken Arctic island 300 miles north of Norway —and whether Norway may pump oil out of its section of the ocean all along a continental shelf stretching right up to the shores of Spitzbergen. Billions of dollars ride on this decision.

The balance of forces in the Nordic north is a military mismatch. Barely 120 Norwegian soldiers patrol the border and serve as the "tripwire" for any Soviet invasion. U.S. and Norwegian planes provide surveillance over the sea.

On the other side is the Soviet force based around Murmansk, the world's most northern large city and, because of the Gulf Stream, Russia's only year-round ice-free port. More than 1,000 Soviet troops patrol the border itself and some 40,000 soldiers are based near Murmansk.

The Northern Fleet, Russia's largest, includes not only conventional warships but two-thirds of all nuclear-powered Soviet submarines armed with ballistic missiles.

It would be from Murmansk that Soviet ships will sail to fight any future battle of the Atlantic. The fleet already cruises regularly as far west as Iceland. The Norwegian Institute of Foreign Affairs has said that one of its wartime functions will be to attack the east coast of the United States.

In any such war, Norway and its oil wealth would be far behind enemy lines.

At the moment, this wealth can only be estimated. Seismic studies indicate the Arctic waters are even richer than the North Sea further south, where the Norwegian oil boom is centered now.

The government plans to authorize drilling in the north near Tromsoe in 1977. No timetable exists, however, for full exploitation of the Arctic waters, either near the coast or on the huge Norwegian shelf sloping out to Spitzbergen.

Before it begins, the Soviet-Norwegian sea frontier question should be settled.

The Soviets say the two countries should divide the sea along a line running due north from the border. The Norwegians, citing a 1958 treaty on continental shelves, say the line should run equidistant between the two territories which would send it off at a northeast angle.

Bizarre Texas double slaying

Hold buffalo rustler in missionary deaths

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Psychiatrists at a federal prison hospital will examine a 42-year-old man for 90 days to see if he is sane and can stand trial for the murders of two Mormon missionaries whose partial remains were found near his stolen house trailer.

Robert Elmer Kleason, wanted in New York for assault and in custody in Texas for a federal gun violation when the capital murder charges were filed this week, was ordered to the Springfield, Mo., hospital because of what authorities described as his "bizarre behavior."

Kleason, a gun fancier and hunter once arrested for buffalo rustling in Texas, appeared pale and unshaven in his courtroom appearance."

Authorities said he had been "out of his head" at times in the past apparently as the result of a hunting accident.

Officials of the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter-day Saints reported as missing Gary Smith Darly, 20, Simi Valley, Calif., and Mark Fischer, 19, Milwaukee. Police said the two missionaries were to have had dinner with Kleason on Oct. 28 —the day they were last seen.

Darley had been in Austin five months, Fischer about five weeks, according to church officials.

The man's stripped car was found in the parking lot of an Austin apartment Nov. 4.

Federal agents searched Kleason's trailer Nov. 5 and he was arrested later that night at a church meeting in Burnet, Tex., on charges of falsifyimg a gun purchase application.

Police Chief R. A. Miles announced parts of the men's bodies were found near Kleason's trailer Tuesday, but he refused to elaborate.

Miles said Kleason is believed to have killed the two men during a robbery on Oct. 28.

An alert East kills contract

By Oswald & James Jacoby

South's three-club bid was unsound. His opening bid had been a minimum and he didn't have a singleton anywhere in his hand. Once he bid three clubs, there was no way to stop at a safe part score. He found himself in three notrump.

He did give the contract the old college try. He ducked a couple of diamonds but had to win the third. Then he led spade to dummy and led the deuce of hearts. His plan was to stick in his eight spot; let West win the trick and then make his contract if hearts broke 3-3.

The idea was a good one but, unfortunately for South's purposes, East played his jack of hearts and the hand collapsed.

If South let it hold East would be in to cash the rest of the diamonds. If South won the trick, he could establish the hearts but have no way to get back to his hand to score tricks with them.

Incidentally, a five-club contract played by North would have been a good one. It would fail because East was sure of two club tricks but all good contracts don't make.

Robber wasn't a gal, but guy in miniskirt

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Bill Arkhaty told police he was puzzled when the two female hitchhikers he picked up tried to rob him and then forced him from his car.

Police solved the mystery when they told him: "That was no lady. That was Leroy Townsend," a man.

Arkhaty said he struggled with the two until he was struck in the face wth a flashlight.

A passing police cruiser spotted the suspects running from the car and captured one, Leroy Townsend, 21, of McKeesport, who was wearing a miniskirt.

Insights on campus today

It has been my experience that when one is summoned by another to discuss "a matter of some delicacy", he should instead prepare himself for a subject which is, in fact, grossly indelicate.

This is "a matter of some delicacy." It concerns that great segment of the population which is so often referred to as Middle Class.

I must confess that I am never sure what is meant by "Middle Class" because I suspect that it means something quite different to virtually every person who dredges up the term.

For the sake of this dissertation, however, I shall arbitrarily define Middle Class as a family whose gross annual income is somewhere between $12,000 and $24,000, however inaccurate that definition may be.

If your family earns more than $24,000 annually, chances are you can figure a way to send one son or daughter to the college of his or her choice.

If you earn less than $12,000, you're a cinch. Various forms of financial aid and loans are available to you.

But — if you're in the magic Middle, you're in a Class by yourself. You are expected to send your offspring to the nearest junior college or state school and that's that.

If he or she wants to go away to school, or out of state, or to a private college which you and he or she feel might better serve his or her needs — you had better scrape up the scratch.

You may find some financial aid, but you may not. You're going to have to look. And you're going to have to listen. And you're going to have to forget part of what you hear. Because you're sure to hear that you earn too much to qualify for financial aid, loans and the like.

It is my experience that a significant number of students and parents simply disqualify themselves. They may be the victims of misinformation; they fail to investigate all possibilities to the fullest extent, or they simply do not apply.

When the students are questioned, they all assure us, "I wouldn't be eligible anyway. My dad makes too much money."

Now, if I'm starting to sound like an expert on this, I'd like to disqualify myself, too. But, depending on your circumstances, where you live, and how many kids you have in school, you may qualify even though you've been told you do not.

Most financial aid is given on the basis of need, as determined by the College Scholarship Service, from the information submitted on the Parent's Confidential Statement.

It seems that aid is not based on your income alone, but out-go as well. It must be determined what is available from your family resources to meet educational costs.

Paul Kampmeier, our director of admissions at La Verne College, tells me that it is not unusual for a family with an income of $18,000 to receive aid while a family which earns $14,000 would not. Paul's contention is simply that any family interested in private education should exhaust all means, apply to all sources.

In addition, Paul reports that many of our California applicants have been mistakenly informed by well-intentioned high school counselors that they would not be academically qualified for a California State Scholarship.

Talk to your student's high school counselor. Talk to one or more college admissions' representative. Try everything. And good luck!

2 teens booked in blaze that engulfed block

HACKENSACK, N.J. (UPI) — Two local teenagers have been arrested on charges of setting a Nov. 9 fire which engulfed a whole city block, causing an estimated $2 million in damage and forcing the evacuation of 200 persons.

Assistant prosecutor Roger W. Breslin said one of the suspects, aged 13, admitted to two other, smaller fires.

"Apparently the kid liked fires," he said.

The Saturday blaze started at the warehouse of Krueger Brothers Inc., a paper bag distributor. It was not until long after nightfall that 300 firemen brought it under control.

Breslin said a third juvenile told authorities he saw the 13-year-old suspect running into the warehouse Saturday.

The two suspects were released into the custody of their parents. They were charged with juvenile delinquency.

Percy asks 'gasless' days to cut fuel use

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., Wednesday said "voluntary fuel reduction doesn't work," and recommended mandatory actions to reduce the nation's oil consumption by 10 per cent, including at least one "no-gas day" per week.

"The time has come to quit fooling around," Percy told a meeting of the Chicago Tax Club recently. "We've got to quit kidding ourselves—voluntary conservation won't work."

Percy said cutting fuel consumption by 10 per cent "will get the message across to the oil cartel that we mean business about liberating ourselves from our dependence on foreign oil."

To accomplish the reduction, Percy recommended increasing gasoline taxes with tax rebates to relieve hardship situations, and a month-by-month cut in petroleum imports until a 30 per cent reduction is attained by 1976.

In addition to either of these options, Percy said, the 55 mile per hour speed limit should be strictly enforced and new taxes should be imposed on automobile manufacturers to reduce the number of "behemoth gas burners."

Further, the senator said, "something new should be brought forth —no-gas days." He said this contemplates the assigning of a particular day of the week to each automobile.

It may not be popular to suggest such oil-saving practices, Percy said, "but somebody has got to take the leadership role."

Poet Laureate

There is record of a Versificator Regis, or King's Poet, in England in the 13th century reign of Henry III, but Geoffrey Chaucer first assumed the title Poet Laureate. In 1389, he got a royal patent for a yearly allowance of wine for the post.

Honey know-how

Honey will stay in its liquid form for longer periods if it is kept in a warm area of the kitchen. Refrigeration hastens granulation. Granulation does not spoil the honey. Use "as is" for a spread or as the sweetener for your favorite cakes and cookies.

Expert rates Eureka vacuum number one for cleaning carpets

"The Eureka is the number one upright vacuum on the market today, especially for cleaning shag carpets," says Roy Mitcheltree, owner of the Pomona Vacuum Center, 1627 Indian Hill Blvd., Pomona.

"You can spend a lot of money for a vacuum but you can't buy a better machine for $109.95 than the Eureka model 2042B," Mitcheltree says. "In fact, it's the vacuum my wife uses in our home."

Eureka has been rated the number one vacuum for more than five years by independent experts too.

Each vacuum is covered by a local warranty service with a full-year guarantee that includes parts and labor.

The model 2042B features a three-position handle and a light which allows for cleaning under furniture easily; a special bag design that allows for a continual clear air path; and a beater bar that's designed to give 25 per cent more suction than other upright vacuums.

The design of the Eureka allows for cleaning right up to the edge of the base board.

For a personal demonstration of a Eureka, "the very best in vacuum cleaners," Pomona Vacuum Center is open six days a week from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at 1627 Indian Hill, Pomona, 626-5625.

Arafat's rise due to diplomatic talent

By United Press International

Yasser Arafat habitually affects the checkered headdress, dark glasses and combat fatigue uniform of a firebrand guerrilla leader.

But in fact he is a mildmannered man. His rise to prominence has been based mainly on his diplomatic talents that have welded the constantly wrangling factions of the Palestinian resistance movement into a cohesive political force.

Arafat, born in Jerusalem in 1939 as one of 10 children, is said to be fanatical about only one thing —the recovery of Palestine.

Once, standing on a hill in Jordan overlooking Jerusalem, he told his aides: "That is my beloved Jerusalem. I stand here to smell the air that keeps me alive."

Still a bachelor at 45, Arafat is wont to say, "My wife is Palestine."

Rise to prominence

Arafat, who studied engineering at Cairo University, rose to prominence as the leader of the original —and still the largest —guerrilla organization, Al Fatah. The name is an acronym for "Palestine Liberation Movement."

Al Fatah announced its first guerrilla operation Jan. 1, 1965 —a sabotage attack inside Israel led by Arafat. Until after the Arab-Israeli war of June 1967, Al Fatah ran into hostility from Arab governments, who feared its operations would provoke Israeli attacks. Because of his activities, Arafat spent 51 days in a Syrian jail.

But after the Arab defeat in 1967, Al Fatah won its "second launching" as the sole active defender of the Arab cause. In March 1968, combined Jordanian and Palestinian forces defeated attacking Israeli troops at Karameh in Jordan and Arafat was established as an Arab world hero.

In February 1969, the Palestine Liberation Organization, the umbrella guerrilla organization, elected Arafat as its chairman. He has retained the post ever since.

As PLO chairman Arafat, who is a pudgy five-foot-seven, seldom shaves and lacks personal glamor, has maintained his grip on rival guerrilla factions and constantly extended PLO influence in the Arab world.

Acts as mediator

At times he has even acted as mediator in Arab disputes, most recently after an Iraq-Kuwait border clash in March 1973. He has managed to maintain good personal relations with such disparate Arab regimes as Saudi Arabia and Iraq, as well as with the currently hostile leaders of Egypt and Libya.

He even has referred to the Jews as "our brothers" and urged non-Zionists among them to "be partners with us" in the building of a new Palestine.

Although the "Black September" organization which carried out some of the most shocking guerrilla terrorist acts is reputed to be an offshoot of Al Fatah, Arafat has frequently condemned hijacking and other forms of violence against civilians as harmful to the cause.

Arafat also repudiates such slogans as "driving the Jews into the sea." In one of his many recent interviews, he said: "We are not trying to kick anyone into the sea. Our ultimate, strategic aim is to create a united, democratic Palestine in which Christians, Jews and Moslems can live together on terms of equality."

Brinegar sees bill enforcing speed limits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Transportation Secretary Claude S. Brinegar said today he is considering legislation to enforce the 55 mile speed limit that might include cutting off highway funds to those states that do not enforce it.

Brinegar, in a session with several reporters, said President Ford is "quite serious" about cracking down on violators of the speed limit, which was imposed during last winter's fuel crisis but which has been increasingly ignored by the nation's motorists.

Brinegar said a group within the Transportation Department was developing proposed legislation now.

Although the federal government does not have the authority to arrest speeders, Brinegar said the federal government could withhold highway funds to a state that did not do its own job of enforcement. He said new legislation would be necessary, however.

Feels lung transplants common in future

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A New York City physician and researcher told a national meeting of chest surgeons recently that successful lung transplants will become fairly common in the future.

Dr. Frank V. Veith, chief of vascular surgery at Montifiore Hospital, said the time could be approaching "when a reasonable number of patients who receive lung transplants will survive, and it may not be too far distant at that."

"Preservation methods suitable for other donor organs have not worked in the past for lungs or have not been evaluated under conditions where the preserved lung has had to provide total pulmonary function," he said.

Veith said dog lungs preserved for as much as nine hours before transplants had worked in recipient animals.

Veith also said one of his patients had survived for six months after the transplant operation at Montifiore.

"Also the patient was made much better by the operation. In Belgium, a lung transplant patient survived for 10 months and showed definite signs of improvement.

"He was able to come off oxygen," said Veith. "He was able to get up and walk around. And he was able to relate to his family."

Veith was appearing at a meeting of the American College of chest physicians.

Tenured teacher

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Of the 53,668 persons holding a teaching certificate and working in the state's public schools, 11,354 men and women had been in the profession 20 years or more, according to the state Department of Education.

College enrollment up nearly four per cent

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Enrollment at colleges and post-secondary schools across the nation has increased nearly 4 per cent this year to 10 million persons, one expert estimated this week.

The University of Cincinnati's Garland G. Parker, a national authority on admissions, said that while two-year college enrollment continued to grow at a 9.1 per cent rate, four-year institutions increased enrollment by 2.2 per cent, somewhat above last year's 1.8 per cent increase.

The figures were based on early returns from over 700 institutions in his annual survey, due for publication in December and January.

In releasing the information, Parker warned that the increase pattern, particularly among full-time students, was unlikely to continue because of declining birthrates.

Part-time enrollment was responsible for the largest percentage of the gain.

Of the 715 schools reporting so far, said Parker, estimated part-time enrollment increased 6.6 per cent. In the 145 two-year schools, part-time enrollment was up 11.3 per cent, and at the 570 reporting four-year schools, there was a gain of 4.8 per cent.

Full-time enrollment at these schools increased 6.8 per cent on the two-year level and 1.4 per cent on the four-year level.

"While there is yet room for gain in part-time enrollment," noted Parker, "in reflection of potential continuing education training for adults, the June, 1974, high school graduating class showed the highest percentage increase that is likely for the rest of the decade and thereafter for another decade or more."

The National Football League averaged 8,211 fans per game in 1934, during the first year of operation.

Rail employe killed by train

COLTON (UPI) — A railroad yard employe was killed Tuesday in an accident at the Southern Pacific yards here.

William T. Stotts, 53, of Redlands, became pinned between an inspection cart he was driving and a moving train.

The victim was dragged nearly 2,000 feet before a conductor observed a cloud of dust and ordered the train stopped. Stotts was pronounced dead at the scene.

Infections: a hazard of being hospitalized

DENVER (UPI) — If you are one of the approximately 30 million Americans who will be hospitalized this year, the chances are one in 20 that you will develop an infection during your hospital stay.

Dr. Theodore Eickhoff, head of the University of Colorado School of Medicine's Division of Infectious Diseases, says that based on the 30 million-patient figure —which he admits is conservative —about 1.5 million persons will become infected while in hospitals this year.

According to Eickhoff, the very young and the very old are more susceptible to hospital infection than other patients, but not simply because of their age.

"The newborn, particularly the premature infant, is compromised by his immunologic immaturity," Eickhoff said. "Aged patients, on the other hand, likely are more compromised by surgical procedures, heart or kidney failure, chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, and others, than by age alone."

One of the main reasons for the increasing number of hospital infections, Eickhoff says, is the double-edged sword of new medical advances.

The use of aritificial limbs, heart valves, vascular grafts and transplantation of entire organs are techniques which are saving lives daily, he says. But these techniques carry with them the danger of creating artificial entries into the body through which pathogens (disease-causing substances) can enter.

Although the use of antibiotics cannot be directly related to hospital infections, Eickhoff says most drugs are capable of altering the microscopic organisms which often contain the body's antibacterial mechanisms.

"It is noteworthy that virtually all of the bacteria regularly associated with hospital infections are capable of developing resistance to many drugs within a relatively short period or are genetically highly resistant to most antibiotics," he said.

"Doctors have come to rely on antibiotics, in part, as the means by which one can prevent infections. In truth, this is not so. When antibiotics are used unnecessarily, improperly or incorrectly, the risk is run of inducing hospital infections."

Another source of hospital infection, Eickhoff says, is the increased usage of prepackaged disposal items such as catheters or syringes. Such items are used by many hospitals on grounds that they are more economical. But, according to Eickhoff, the general assumption that such items are always germ-free may not be true.

"Probably the most common sites of hospital-acquired infection are the respiratory and urinary tracts and surgical wounds," he said. "Correspondingly, the problem procedures are urinary tract or intravenous catheters and inhalation therapy. Too often such devices are used as a convenience rather than as a necessity."

Too, he said, many hospitals are forced to operate with fewer than adequate personnel, often resulting in a doctor or nurse hurrying from one patient to another without washing his hands. Such procedures, he said, also carry a great risk of hospital infection.

"There is no easy formula to apply to the control of hospital infections," he said. "Continued emphasis on hand washing to minimize direct contact spread by personnel and continued attention to high-risk procedures are elements of control that could be profitably emphasized in most hospitals.

"But hospital-acquired infections are just one of the hazards of being hospitalized. They are going to continue to occur and it would be wholly unrealistic to suggest that they can be prevented completely.

Real or legal, religious or just absurd?

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — The Public Utility Commission said Bell Telephone doesn't have to put Mrs. Zephaniahaza Sebastian Klinghoffermandellfieldson III's, name in the Philadelphia Telephone directory.

The commission said that her request for a listing was rejected because it failed to meet phone company criteria. Bell will not print a name unless it is the same name used for general identification purposes.

Bell said there was no proof of anything "real or legal" about the name Klinghoffermandellfieldson, which was submitted by Sarah T. Shore of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Shore said she considered her name "religious."

Trench fashion

The original trenchcoat was introduced in 1910 and called the Tielocken, because the wearer tied and locked it closed by means of a strap and buckle. It became the standard coat for British combat officers during trench warfare in 1914 when it took on its popular name.

'Cat on a Hot Tin Roof'

Cal Poly stages Pulitzer Prize drama by Tennessee Williams

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN

Cal Poly's entry in the American College Theater Festival competition is Tennessee Williams'..."Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," given a savage, steamy production under the direction of Ralph McCormic, professor of drama.

The Pulitzer Prize play of 1955, "Cat" plays in the university theater at 8 tonight and Saturday.

The drama of big Big Daddy, his flourishing plantation and his decaying family is a morbid, painful and finally pitiable tale, told with Williams' sharp incisiveness that performs artful surgery on the human condition — with the notable exception of the funny bone. The playwright does not know how to laugh ("The Glass Menagerie," "A Streetcar Named Desire," "The Rose Tatoo").

McCormic has drawn an impressively talented cast to the cotton-pickin' morality play, and has painted the scene in strong strokes, stressing the thought unexpressed as richly as the bombast.

Monte Van Vleet's Big Daddy is an artfully realized characterization that gives conviction to the braggadocio, the fear, the need for love that blend in the man. On occasion, like several others in the cast, he tends toward caricature, to out-Herod Herod, but it is a convincing and moving portrayal.

As Big Daddy's heir apparent, Brick, Barry Moore offers a thoughtfully subdued performance, a young alcoholic with enough emotional hangups to send a stronger man to the bottle. His wife, Maggie, played by Robin Marie La Valley, gives a taut, tortured picture of one of the cats on the hot tin roof.

Kathleen Meadows is delightfully open and gusty as Big Momma, a hearty, outgoing soul who deserves more (as do most of the others) than fate and Williams have allotted her. Robin Clark's Mae is a spirited though somewhat stereotyped characterization.

Handling smaller parts with varying degrees of success are William Dunn as Gooper; Leon Fricke, Doc Baugh; Paul Oakes, Rev. Tooker; Courtney Johnstone, Beula; Jeanie Weens, Little Girl, and Alex Bucollia, Little Boy.

Michael Devine's set is a thing of beauty — fine, spare, and imaginative, and his lighting scheme lends greatly to the mood and movement of "Cat."

Ten students from the local group were chosen to perform at the new Materials Program at the state MTAC convention in San Diego last summer.

The were Lisa Johnson, Debbie Roberts, Elaine Gerstner, Grant Allgeier, Marisa Tusa, Laurie Atagi, Carol Jackson, Curtis Crider, Barbara Del Rio and Patricia Hyndmann.

PREP PREVIEW

Ganesha vs. Upland at Cal Poly

The last time Ganesha won a San Antonio League football championship, the Giants had to beat Upland in the final game of the regular season to do it.

They're up against that same situation tonight (7:30 p.m.) at Cal Poly.

If Ganesha wins, the San Antonio League championship will go to them (even though they may have to share it with Claremont). If the Giants lose, they still have a chance to claim one-fourth of the title — but that will be close to a miracle.

Ganesha (4-2, 3-2-1) will rely on its explosive Wishbone offense, which will be piloted by quarterback Reggie Freeman. His running backs will be fullback Ron Rentz and halfbacks Lawrence Jacques and Arthur "Turtle" Lane. Don't be mistaken, his nickname doesn't indicate his speed.

Upland (3-3, 3-4-1) also has a shot at the title. But if the Highlanders win, they'll have to depend on a Chino win over Garey, a Montclair victory over Pomona and a Damien triumph over Claremont in order to claim the title.

The Scots, like Ganesha, possess plenty of speed in running backs Mike Rees and Mark White, who is just coming off an injury. The fullback will be Dominic Licavoli and the quarterback Jay Morton.

Upland slipped away with a 21-20 win last year.

Claremont at Damien

Claremont goes after its fourth San Antonio League championship tonight (7:30 p.m.)

Meanwhile, Damien will be searching for its first SAL title.

That's right, both have a shot at it tonight.

Claremont (4-2, 4-4) is leading the Spartains (3-3, 5-3) in the standings by one game. If Claremont wins, the title will be decided immediately. If Damien wins, the Spartans will have to await the results from the rest of the league to determine their status.

Claremont will be led by veteran quarterback Kent Stalwick, with the Wolfpack running game supplied by Dan Thomas and Chuck Purdy.

Damien, running basically the same offensive attack as Claremont, will depend mostly on the running of Ruben Lopez, the passing of quarterback Joe Carroll and the receiving of Paul Broadway and Steve Gaston.

Claremont won handily last year, 28-3.

Pomona at Montclair

Believe or not, Pomona can win the San Antonio League championship tonight (7:30 p.m.).

The Red Devils, the defending SAL co-champs, need a victory over Montclair plus Claremont and Ganesha losses in order to win at least a share of the crown.

And some people in the league believe the Devils' chances are pretty good.

Pomona (3-2-1, 3-4-1) has seemingly got its offense in gear, and it looks like just in time. John Souza will be calling the signals for the Devils, with fleet-footed Raymond Butler and Charles Cole and powerful Hank Zibell running out of the backfield.

Montclair is presently occupying the SAL cellar with a 1-5 league record and a 3-5 seasonal mark. But the Cavaliers have the equipment to pull an upset. They'll rely on quarterback Brent Jetton and running back Jim Donaldson to do most of the work.

Pomona waltzed to a 33-12 victory last year.

Bad Henry comes home

Will be Milwaukee DH

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Home run king Henry Aaron is a Milwaukee ballplayer again, at least for two years under a "playing contract" he signed Thursday. But he could be a Brewer "for many years to come," Club president Allan "Bud" Selig said.

"We expect Henry to have a very, very long relationship with us," Selig said at a news conference reintroducing Aaron to the local media after his nine-year absence.

Selig had been asked whether Aaron, who will be 41 on Feb. 5, was in line for a top administrative job with the Brewers after the "playing conrtact" expired.

Selig said "nothing specific" had been discussed regarding Aaron's career two years hence, but it was easy enough to read between the lines of his lengthy answer.

The Brewers don't have a general manager and it's no secret that Aaron would love to become the first black GM in major league baseball.

But for the time being, Aaron will concentrate on increasing his home run total of 733. Brewers field manager Del Crandall — a teammate of Aaron's during the Braves' heyday here in the 1950s—said Aaron would be used "primarily as a designated hitter but at times will be called on to play the field."

"This is a tremendous challenge to me," said Aaron, who broke into major league baseball with the Milwaukee Braves in 1954. "This is a new league one I'm unfamiliar with. I feel I'll have more responsibility than I've ever had in my career. The main thing is to help bring a championship back to the city I love so dearly.

"I played under tremendous pressure last season and I didn't want that season to be my last. I'm better than a .268 hitter."

Aaron, who admitted he has slowed down in recent years, hit only 20 home runs last season—his lowest total since he hit 13 in his rookie year. He said the pressure and publicity he received after breaking Babe Ruth's record of 714 career homers prevented him from concentrating fully on playing ball.

"I consider last year not a typical Henry Aaron year," he said. "I'd like to come back and hit 30 or 35 home runs next season."

The Brewers obtained Aaron from Atlanta for outfielder Dave May and a minor league player in a deal agreed to Nov. 2.

Selig said the agreement was "an extraordinary contract for an extraordinary player," but he would not divulge whether the slugger was getting the reported $200,000 a year he got at Atlanta.

"We are delighted to have the greatest baseball player of our generation," Selig said. "He brings class and dignity back with him to Milwaukee."

Lee MacPhail, American League president, also was on hand and recalled how he goofed when he didn't act fast enough to sign Aaron to a New York Yankee contract in 1952. He said Aaron's return to Milwaukee "is a great day for the American League."

All of Aaron's home runs have been hit with the National League Braves—398 with Milwaukee and 335 with Atlanta. He has a lifetime batting average of .310.

"I'm not here to be a batting instructor, but I'll give advice if I'm asked," he said. "I hope some of the things I've learned in 21 years will rub off on the young players here."

Pac-8 tourney for NCAA slot

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) — Oregon basketball coach Dick Harter says "it is time for the Pacific-8 basketball conference to hold a post-season tournament for the eight member schools, with the winner earning a berth in the NCAA playoffs."

Harter, who came west from Pennsylvania in hopes of dethroning John Wooden and the UCLA Bruins, likes the Atlantic Coast Conference idea of throwing the regular season record into the ashcan and playing a pots-season conference tourney for the berth in the NCAA. That is one way to get another crack at Wooden and the Bruins when all else fails.

"I'm not sure I buy the idea," said Oregon State's Ralph Miller, who also left a Big Ten champion ship team to come west.

"The NCAA has announced it will invite second-place teams to its basketball tournament in the future," Harter said. "I think that makes a post-season tournament for our conference a natural. In these times of financial problems in athletic departments, I don't see how we can turn our backs on this possibility. Such a tournament would net about $40,000 for each of the schools."

Harter said a Pacific-8 tournament would "be a great draw anywhere on the West Coast."

Lakers hope to snap string

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — The Los Angeles Lakers, in the cellar of the NBA's Pacific Division, seek to halt a four-game losing streak tonight when they meet the Philadelphia 76ers.

Billy Cunningham, an NBA All-Star before jumping to the ABA Carolina Cougars, is back with Philadelphia and will make his first appearance at the Forum since 1971-72.

The Lakers are at Portland Saturday night and host the Chicago Bulls Sunday night.

A.D. zeros in on O.J.'s rush mark

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Heisman Trophy candidate Anthony Davis can break O.J. Simpson's career rushing record and University of Southern California can move to within one victory of its third straight Rose Bowl appearance Saturday when the Trojans face Washington's Huskies.

USC, which has won nine straight games against Washington, is a three-touchdown favorite for the 1:30 p.m. PST game at the Coliseum.

Davis is within 157 yards of becoming the greatest rusher in Pacific-8 and USC history. The 5-9, 185-pound senior from San Fernando, Calif., has 3,267 yards in three seasons while Simpson, the 1968 Heisman Trophy winner, rolled up 3,423 yards in two years.

The seventh-ranked Trojans won 34-10 at Stanford last weekend to become heavy favorites to represent the Pac-8 in the Rose Bowl for the seventh time in the last 10 years.

"I think we can play even better," said USC Coach John McKay. "But we were more consistent on offense against Stanford and I don't see how our defense can play much better."

USC takes a 4-0-1 Pac-8 record and a 6-1-1 overall mark against the Huskies, who are coming off a 52-26 drubbing at home against California last weekend.

In the Trojans' conference finale next weekend, they face UCLA.

McKay sounded worried despite Washington's 4-5 record. He pointed out the Huskies blitzed Oregon 66-0 and UCLA 31-9 before getting bombed by Cal.

"I know Jim Owens' teams are always well coached and play hard against us," he stressed. "We had better be ready."

In eight games, the USC defense has allowed just 81 points but it will be severely tested by Washington's mammoth sophomore, 6-5, 240-pound Robin Earl. After two straight 100-yard plus games, Earl picked up 89 against California.

"This guy is the biggest running back in captivity," quipped McKay. "Except I'm not sure he's a captive."

"We know that we're going up against the team which is expected to win the conference title," said Owens, "and it's going to take everything within our power to stay with them.

"We're ready to bounce back, too. We have a team which doesn't give up, doesn't quit and which will be ready to meet this great challenge."

McKay feels Davis deserves to become his third tailback to win the Heisman. The first, of course, was Mike Garrett in 1965. Then Simpson.

Blocked punt sinks Sun

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

ANAHEIM — The Southern California Sun came to life in the second half Thursday night and may shine in the playoffs after all.

In the last game of the regular season, the Western Division champions spotted the Florida Blazers a 24-7 lead in the first half, came back to tie the score only to blow the game on a blocked punt and subsequent Florida field goal with four seconds left and lose, 27-24.

The Sun now will carry a 13-7 record in the playoffs next Thursday (6 p.m.) against Hawaiia (9-11). Florida (14-6) will play Charlotte (10-10) Wednesday night.

There was a question as to which Sun team would show up Thursday night to play the Blazers . . . the one which roared to 12 wins in the first 16 games or the team which dropped two of the next three after clinching the division title.

The answer was both.

The listless, lacklustre bunch showed up for the first half. They made only five first downs and netted just 94 yards while giving up 260 yards and 13 first downs to fall behind 24-7.

"I got on 'em pretty good at the half," admitted an unhappy coach Tom Fears. "They weren't playing good football. We didn't change our game plan one bit. We just executed better."

Indeed they did.

The second half was almost all Sun. Florida was outgained 185 yards to 21, out first downed, 13-2 and outscored 17-3.

"It (the game) really turned around in the second half," admitted Jack Pardee, Blazers coach. "We definitely lost momentum. We didn't go conservative on purpose. (Dave) Roller was super. He just kept putting pressure on us."

Roller, the 6-2, 272-pound defensive tackle played his usual fine game, but was ejected for a personal foul with 1:58 left in the game and the score knotted.

That gave Florida a first down on the Sun 44-yard line But three plays only netted five yards and the Blazers were forced to punt.

Here Pardee inserted Billy Hobbs to punt instead of Dave Strock. Strock had averaged over 41 yards on four previous punts. But Hobbs booted a high 38-yarder that bounced dead on the Sun one yard line with 27 seconds left in the game.

If the Sun could avoid a safety, overtime seemed certain. But two quarterback sneaks used up only seven seconds and netted only two yards as Florida called timeout after each play. Ralph Nelson picked up seven yards and it was fourth and one with 12 seconds left.

Norm Hainlen, punting from the end zone, got a high snap from center and seemed to move very deliberately as the left side of the Blazer line poured in on him. Linebacker Eddie Sheets reached him in time to block the kick.

It was Florida's ball with four seconds left. Strock kicked a 25-yard field goal and it was all over.

"We should have gotten a good punt off," an angry Fears exclaimed. There's no reason for not getting a good punt off. We didn't need to milk it down to the last seconds. After the runback they wouldn't have had time to run a play."

The Sun coach was also unhappy with the officiating at the end of the game. "Their man was offside on the punt block," he continued. "Then, on the field goal, their left tackle was moving and they (the officials) didn't call either."

Fears admitted he was glad his team flashed its old form for part of the game, but overall was still displeased with the way things have been going.

"I feel a little better off," he said. "But I feel like hell losing three of the last four."

POSTGAME POTPOURRI — Kermit Johnson carried the ball only five times before pinching a nerve in his shoulder. But his 38 yards gained was enough to put him over the thousand mark at 1,008.

Despite raw, chilly weather and some fog, 28,213 turned out.

James McAlister, who was supposed to be held out, played after all and suffered a bruised knee, something Fears was afraid of.

Clay Jeffries, a Cerritos College fullback, was activated Thursday and saw action Thursday night.

Tommy Reamon of the Blazers wound up with 68 yards in 18 carries to finish as the WFS's leading ground gainer with 1,576 yards.

City policeman sets world powerlift record in finals

Marvin Phillips, a Pomona policeman, set a new world record in the squat lift and captured second place in the mid-heavy division of the world AAU powerlift championships held last weekend at York, Pa.

With 28 countries competing, the U.S. finished first in the competition with 126 points. Great Britain was second with 96 and Argentina was third with 75.

Phillips pushed 733.5 pounds for the squat lift record, the second best in history, and ran his total to 1,836 pounds with a dead lift of 635 pounds and a bench press of 468 pounds. Larry Pacifico of New York won the mid-heavy division with a total of 1,900 pounds.

Phillips' training partner, Buddy Rabbenscroft, formerly of Pomona and now of Long Beach, was second in the light-heavy division with 1,775 pounds.

Phillips believes he and Rabbenscroft may be the first Californians to place in world powerlift competition.

Both will be members of the nine-man U.S. team which will compete in the Pan-American Games next spring. They have also been invited to Australia to conduct a series of lifting clinics.

Earlier this year Phillips won the AAU Junior and Senior Nationals titles in the mid-heavy division, setting four American and national records in the process.

Ironically, he almost gave up the sport two years ago, but returned to it after allowing himself to gain enough body weight to compete in the mid-heavy division. He has been lifting for 17 years.

"It's my greatest accomplishment," said Phillips of the world record. "It was a real honor representing the United States aginst 28 other countries.

"I think it's quite a thing to be the best in the world. I finally made it."

Montreal, Buffalo are NHL winners

By United Press International

In terms of both notoriety and accomplishment, Ken Dryden and Pete Lopresti stand more than an ice rink apart. But the two goaltenders shared a special sense of accomplishment Thursday night.

Dryden, making a comeback after sitting out all of last season, enjoyed what he termed "my most satisfying win so far this year" when he helped the Montreal Canadiens gain a 4-1 victory at Boston. Dryden, who has yet to show the consistent form that carried the Canadiens to two Stanley Cup championships before he left the club over a contract dispute, turned aside 39 Bruin shots.

The victory was particularly significant for Dryden since the night before he had been bombed for eight goals in his own arena by the Buffalo Sabres.

"I've had better spots in the games we've won against Toronto and Philadelphia," Dryden said. "But coming in and beating Boston like this is the high point of the year."

Lopresti didn't have as much to show for his night's work in Buffalo as the Sabres beat him and the Minnesota North Stars, 5-3. However, it was his first start in the National Hockey League and thus will remain a landmark for him.

The previous night, on Wednesday, Lopresti had been watching the scoreboard as Buffalo rolled up the score on Montreal, and that didn't exactly put him in the best frame of mind.

"When I saw they got eight goals on Ken Dryden in Montreal, all I could think about was 'what can they do at home,'" said the 20-year-old native of Virginia, Minn.

Lopresti didn't fare too poorly against the Sabres, who stretched their unbeaten string to 10 games. He allowed four goals, the fifth coming after he was pulled from the net for an extra skater in the final minute of play.

They were the only two games played in the NHL.

In the World Hockey Association, Michigan beat Chicago 4-2, Cleveland edged Phoenix 2-1 in overtime and New England ripped San Diego 7-2.

Canadiens 4 Bruins 1

Guy Lafleur scored two goals for Montreal and Guy Lapointe and Jacques Lemaire had one each. The victory lifted the Canadiens to within four points of first-place Los Angeles in Division 3.

Sabres 5 North Stars 3

Rick Martin scored two power play goals in the second period to give Buffalo a 4-2 lead. Jude Drouin cut Minnesota's deficit in half with his first goal of the season in the third period but Danny Gare scored into an empty net with six seconds left to clinch the game. The Sabres boosted their lead over runnerup Boston to nine points in Division 4 and Buffola Coach Floyd Smith said, "If anybody had told me we'd have that lead at this time, I wouldn't have believed him."

Stags 4 Cougars

Marc Tardif and Danny Gruen scored 38 seconds apart midway through the final period to help Michigan snap a six-game winless string in a game matching WHA division cellar-dwellers.

Whalers 7 Mariners 2

Two goals by Tom Webster helped deal San Diego its first loss at home. Rookie goaltender Christer Abrahamsson, a former Swedish national team member, stopped 35 shots by San Diego, allowing only two goals by Wayne Rivers.

Crusaders 2 Roadrunners 1

Jim Harrison, playing in his fifth game with Cleveland since being acquired from Edmonton, scored his first goal of the season at seven minutes of overtime to provide the Crusaders with the victory.

Hope beats Diaz in cross country

By KEVIN CLOE
P-B Staff Writer

There was a little unexpected mixed in with the expected at Thursday afternoon's Hacienda League cross country finals at Mt. San Antonio College.

The expected portion of the meet was that San Dimas easily won the league championship, claiming four of the top ten positions and recording a total of 36 points.

The Saints were followed by Walnut's 68 points, one ahead of Alta Loma and Royal Oak, both tied for third with 69 points.

The unexpected event of the day was when Alta Loma's Joel Hope defeated the unbeaten varsity dual meet champion, Frank Diaz of San Dimas. Hope and Diaz battled it out right down to the wire, with Hope winning in a time of 10:46 over the rugged two-mile MSAC course.

Diaz finished with a 10:47, while Alta Loma's Ray Dacolias took third in 10:52.

The top three individuals in varsity competition, plus the top two teams, will advance to the CIF 2-A preliminaries, which will be held Saturday, Nov. 23 at MSAC.

San Dimas, the Hacienda League dual meet king this year, had an incredibled showing in the finals. Besides Diaz' second-place finish, Kevin Kellogg placed fourth in 10:53, Perry Lamont was fifth in 10:55, and Ron Hargett grabbed the sixth spot in 10:58.

San Dimas also won the junior varsity competition, while Walnut copped the frosh-soph title.

There were a few girls competing in the meet.

San Dimas' Martha Diaz, Frank's sister, finished 38th in a 71-runner field in the frosh-soph competition. She was clocked in 13:18.

Alta Loma had a pair of girls in the junior varsity race, with Martha Gailey taking a 50th and Corrine Fultz a 51st in the 52-runner field.

MSAC hosts Southern Cal x-country meet

Mt. San Antonio College hosts the Southern California Community College Cross Country Championships Saturday on MSAC's hilly, tortuous four-mile cross country course in Walnut.

The meet begins at 10 a.m. with large and small schools competition. A novice division race begins at 9:30 a.m.

Three-time defending champion Grossmont is picked as the favorite to win the Southern California title for the fourth time. Glendale is the choice to capture the small schools division.

MSAC, runnerup to Fullerton for the South Coast Conference dual meet title and the conference championships last weekend, hopes to place in the top five among large schools.

The top five teams in each division and the first 15 individual runners qualify for the state championships at MSAC, Nov. 23.

Braves beat Celts minus DiGregorio

By United Press International

Tom Heinsohn asked, "who would you rather be without, Dave Cowens or Ernie DiGregorio?"

The answer, Thursday night at least, was Ernie DiGregorio.

The Boston Celtics, as they have all year, played without Cowens, recovering from a broken foot. The Buffalo Braves were playing minus Ernie D., out with torn cartilage in his knee, and doing very nicely, thank you.

The Braves utilized Randy Smith (27 points) Jim McMillian (20) and Bob McAdoo (18) to whip the Celtics, 112-100, at Providence, R.I.

The truth is Buffalo has enough horses to gallop without their 6-1 playmaker from Providence College while Boston shows time and again its inability to handle a good-shooting, mobile center when Cowens is not available.

"We've been playing good basketball since we lost Ernie," said Braves Coach Jack Ramsay after the win that gave Buffalo a 2½-game lead over Boston in the National Basketball Association's Atlantic Division.

"We've beaten a lot of good teams both at home and on the road. When Ernie was injured, I told my players to concentrate on the things that will help them win, like playing better defense," Ramsay said. "We won't score as many points and we'll miss his ball handling, so we have to distribute those things among other players and they all have done a good job."

The defense paid off in the second half when the Braves shut down Boston's fast break. Trailing 62-59 midway into the third period, the Braves struck for eight unanswered points and never relented.

"They played well, we played well but they got the key baskets and we didn't," said Celtic Coach Heinsohn, whose team lost for the second time in seven games. "We did well on the boards (winning the rebound battle 62-55) but we didn't get any points inside."

In other NBA action, New York downed Cleveland 94-89, Houston beat Chicago 105-96 and Portland defeated Atlanta 104-92. In the American Basketball Association, San Antonio edged Kentucky 102-100 in overtime, St. Louis beat Virginia 118-96 and New York defeated Memphis 108-101.

Old golfers make eagle putts

By PHIL ROCH
P-B Staff Writer

Old golfers don't quit under pressure. They just make eagle putts to win tournaments. An experienced player did it again Thursday.

The 58-year-old, tour-tested Jerry Barber of Griffith Park won the 74th Southern California Open at Via Verde Country Club by dropping a 25-foot eagle putt on the 18th hole.

Barber's second shot rolled to within 25 feet of the pin on the 497-yard, par 5 hole. Barber patiently waited his turn, then quickly and calmly knocked the putt in for an eagle three to post a 69 on the final day and a 212 total, four underpar, for the 54-hole tourney.

Russ Fraser of Ventura closed with a rush, firing a sensational 66 (34-32) to finish one stroke behind Barber at 213. Dennis Meyer of Quail Lake shot a 68 to finish in third place at 214. Fraser's 66 was one shot off the course record of 65.

Jimmy Powell of Via Verde, the tournament director also found the range Wednesday, closing with a 68 to pick up fourth money at 216. Powell's earlier rounds were 75 and 73.

Leading the amateurs was Glendora's Marsh Shumaker, who fashioned rounds of 72-76-78 — 226 over the demanding Via Verde layout.

But the day belonged to the 5-7, 140-pound Barber, who first began playing on the professional tour back in 1948, long before many of the pros in the tournament were born.

Barber, accepting the first place championship, said, "Why shouldn't I win? I have more experience playing in tournaments than anyone here."

He started the day with a two under par 34, then closed with a title-winning 35. Barber's greatest win goes back to 1961 when at the age of 45, he won the National PGA title.

First place money in the Southern Cal Open is $1,500. Fraser picked up $1,000 for second, and Meyer pocketed $750 for third place.

Fraser said after the tournament he had never played Via Verde before Tuesday, the first day of the tournament.

Most pros and amateurs found the narrow fairways, fast greens, and early morning winds more than they could handle.

But Barber had nothing but praise for the San Dimas course. "It demands quality golf shots," he said. "It looks a lot easier than it is. It's in magnificent shape.

Bruins put bowl hopes on the line

CORVALLIS, Ore. (UPI) — The UCLA Bruins put their Rose Bowl hopes on the line in the Oregon State "pumpkin patch" Saturday.

While the stakes are high for Dick Vermeil's club, the game may be even more important for Dee Andros, the Great Pumpkin, who is completing his 10th season as Beaver head coach.

Andros is nearing the end of his fourth straight losing season, and the game against UCLA is a toughening exercise for the big one around here— against Oregon next week. The fact that Andros has lost to arch-rival Oregon only once in 10 years is one of the main keys to his tenure, or as he puts it, "the right to live in Oregon."

Vermeil says his team can't afford to look past Oregon State to USC and the Rose Bowl showdown game. The Beavers look past no one because success has been rare lately, the Beavers going 5-6, 2-9 and 2-9 in the past three seasons and currently are 2-7.

"Our kids have seen the films and know Oregon State is a physical football team that comes at you on offense and defense," said Vermeil, who did not let up in practice this week on his injury-plagued club.

"Our kids," says Andros, "have a great deal more pride and poise than our record indicates. We're a lot better team than some people think." Only Ohio State this year has blown the Beavers out of the ball park.

Veteran OSU Sports Information Director John Eggers told this week's sportswriters and sportscasters meeting in Portland: "In the years I've been at Oregon State, I've seen some of our teams with 7-3 and 6-4 records that weren't as good as this one."

The Bruins are ailing, with injured star quarterback John Sciarra and running back Wendell Tyler out for the season.

Boxing show to benefit Scouts, PAL

A boxing show, benefiting the Pomona Athletic League (PAL) and the Old Baldy Council of the Boy Scouts of America, will be held at the girl's gym at Cal Poly Tuesday night, beginning at 8 o'clock.

MECHA, a Chicano student organization, is hosting the event which is planned as a father-son affair.

Tickets at $2 per person may be purchased in advance at the Old Baldy Council, 120 W. San Jose, Claremont, or at the Beta Center at the corner of Hamilton and Grand in Pomona.

Ten three-round amateur bouts, featuring former national AAU light-flyweight champion Albert Sandoval, are scheduled. Sandoval, a 1976 Olympics contender, is scheduled to meet an as yet unamed amateur from Tijuana.

Other bouts, featuring boxers from the PAL, match David Rodriguez (Pomona) vs. Mike Marquex (Riverside), Ricky Samudio (Pomona) vs. Guy Shott (Porterville), Danny Samudio (Pomona) vs Jimmy Hughes (Porterville), Bobby Rizo (Pomona) vs. Zenith Burks (Compton), Ruben Rodriguez (Pomona) vs. Adam Muro (Azusa), Art Frias (East L.A. (VS. Simon Morales (Porterville) and Bruce Henderson (Pomona) vs. an unamed opponent.

Kings play in Vancouver

VANCOUVER (UPI) — The sizzling Los Angeles Kings, with only one loss in their first 16 games, face the Vancouver Canucks in NHL action tonight.

The Kings ran their unbeaten string to nine games with a 4-0 victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs at home Wednesday night.

Rogie Vachon has played in 11 of Los Angeles' 16 games and his record is 7-0-4. He has two shutouts and his goals against average is 1.19.

Progress-Bulletin PREP PREVIEW

Ontario vs. Alta Loma at Chaffey College

The only thing at stake in this game is the cellar.

The winner gets out of last place while the loser may wind up tied for last place.

Ontario (2-6 overall 1-5 league) with its 20-man roster displayed some fortitude last week with an 8-7 win over Gladstone. Alta Loma (2-6 overall 1-5 league) with fine talent but no depth lost to Sierra Vista 22-8.

This 8 p.m kickoff at Chaffey College will display two explosive offenses. The Jaguars have Marcus Jennings and Steve Bell while the Braves feature Tom Bright and Bob Branchetti.

Walnut vs. Sierra Vista at Baldwin Park

Walnut has something at stake in this contest but first it must get by the stubborn Dons.

The Mustangs (4-4 overall, 4-2 league) could slip in for a post season playoff berth with a victory, providing Royal Oak and San Dimas lose.

Coach Ken Gunn's club knocked off the Saints last week, 12-0, with young quarterback Kevin Loggins leading the Mustangs in his first starting assignment. He has a lot of help for this 8 p.m. kickoff at Baldwin Park High in running backs Terry O'Neill and Keith McDermott.

Sierra Vista (4-4, 3-3) has Keith Smith and Jerry Cardenas, both rushed for over 100 yards last week, in the backfield.

Royal Oak vs. Gladstone at Citrus

If Royal Oak is still licking its wounds from the Bonita game coach Len Mussack will have to shake up his squad when it tackles Gladstone tonight at Citrus College at 8 p.m. or the Romans will be out of a playoff berth

Royal Oak (5-2-1 overall, 4-1-1 league) needs a season-finale victory to gain a spot in the CIF playoffs as a runnerup team. Gladstone (2-6 overall, 1-5 league) would like nothing better than to be a spoiler.

The Romans enter the contest with the third best offensive in the valley, scoring 17.4 points a game, and the second best defense, yielding just 8.4 per outing.

Chris Tribble, ranked 10th in the scoring derby with 32 points, Rick Hall, Vince Nixon and Jim Garcia lead the Roman offense.

Rowland vs. Workman at La Puente

While the Raiders will be trying to just tune up for the upcoming CIF playoffs tonight, the Workman Lobos are still fighting to get into the playoffs. Thus Rowland will have to guard against complacency tonight as the two schools battle at La Puente High. Kickoff is slated for 8 p.m.

Rowland wrapped up the Montview League title last week but Workman, with a 4-2 league mark going into tonight's game, has a chance to reach the playoffs with a victory over the Raiders.

The Lobos have a fine defensive unit so Flavio Garcia and company will get a stern test of their offensive abilities in this Montview matchup.

Northview at Nogales

The fired-up Nobles would like to start the Montview League season over again at this point, but it's too late for that to happen.

Nogales can clinch a winning season, however, as the Nobles face league rival Northview tonight at Nogales High at 8 p.m.

The La Puente lads are fully recovered from numerous injuries suffered earlier in the year and figure to have too much fire-power for the lackluster Vikings to handle.

Baldwin Park at Charter Oak

Both of these Montview League entries entertain slim chances of entering CIF playoff competition, but both must win tonight for that to happen.

Obviously, only one can. Game time is scheduled for 8 p.m. at Charter Oak High.

The Lancers (3-3 in league going into tonight) will have to find a way to put it together on offense and stop B. P. ace quarterback Jon Hattabaugh on defense to stay in the game with the potent Braves.

Chaffey at Fontana

If the 1974 season is going to last longer than nine games for the Chaffey High Tigers, they have to post a victory tonight at Fontana High. Kickoff is scheduled for 8 p.m. in this important Citrus Belt League fray.

Chaffey, by winning tonight, could well be in line for a CIF playoff invite. But Fontana is a mighty tough roadblock. The Steelers are 3-1 in CBL activity and have a very effective ball-control type of team.

The Tigers, on the other hand, sport a spirited defense but haven't impressed anyone yet on offense. That offense needs a big game tonight to keep Chaffey's season alive.

Star of Sea at Ontario Christian

The Knights of Ontario Christian have an opportunity to finish 1974 with a victory tonight as they play host to Mary Star of the Sea. Game time is set for 7:30 p.m.

OCHS appears to have too much firepower for the visitors from San Pedro to handle, but strangely the Knights have had trouble scoring of late.

The Knights can finish with a winning 5-4 slate with a victory tonight, so if nothing else that should provide some incentive to defeat the Stars.

Don Lugo beats Garey

Joe Trujillo scored on a six-yard run with six and a half minutes left in the game to give Don Antonio Lugo High a 12-6 victory over Garey High Thursday afternoon in San Antonio League freshman football league action.

The victory gave Don Lugo a share of the SAL frosh title with Montclair, and it also placed the Conquistadors in the post-season playoffs.

The Q's will battle Walnut, the Hacienda League champion, on Saturday, Nov. 23 in the opening round of the playoffs. Game time is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at Chino High

Don Lugo's only other touchdown came on a four-yard run by quarterback Dan Reyes.

David Aguilar was the leading ground-gainer for the Conquistadors, picking up 116 yards on 28 carries.

Coach John Monger's Don Lugo club, which now has a 4-3 record over the past three years, finished the regular season with an 8-1 record.

Jayhawks won't roll over for mighty Sooners

By United Press International

What do you do when you get ready to send your football team out to meet the mighty Sooners of Oklahoma?

Well, if you're Kansas football coach Don Fambrough, you keep a stiff upper lip and say: "We don't plan to roll over and die."

But on the basis of the Sooners' record, the Kansas Jayhawks may very well be left for dead after Saturday's game at Lawrence.

Barry Switzer's Oklahoma legions are 8-0 for the season, are on a 17-game winning streak, have not lost in 26 games, and Switzer himself has a coaching record of 18-0-1 since taking over the head job.

While the Sooners may be taking the measure of Kansas, three national powers—Alabama, Michigan and Ohio State— will be attempting to defend and improve their ratings in the national ratings by the UPI board of coaches which exclude the Sooners because of Oklahoma's NCAA probation status for recruitment violations.

Ohio State had been No. 1 in the ratings prior to its riotous 16-13 upset by Michigan State's Spartans last week.

The Spartans, now rated 15th by the UPI Board of Coaches, are a 14-point pick over Indiana as State tries to keep its slim Big Ten title hopes alive.

Ohio State, which fell to third in the ratings, figures to take out its frustrations on Iowa and is the pick by 29.

Michigan, unbeaten and now the Big Ten leader and rated second in the nation, is a 21-point choice over Purdue, but the Wolverines could be in trouble if they look ahead to their Nov. 23 date in Columbus, Ohio, instead of concentrating on the Boilermakers.

Top-rated Alabama is an off-the-board pick over Miami, Fla., and the Crimson Tide isn't likely to let this one get away by thinking too much about fifth rated Auburn, the Tide's next opponent. Auburn is a seven point favorite over Georgia.

Notre Dame, rated fourth, comes off a week's rest to tackle Pitt. The Irish are favored by 20 over the Panthers, who have an upset incentive. Victory over Notre Dame would put Pitt in the Liberty Bowl.

Sixth rated Nebraska is 29 points over Kansas State, seventh listed Southern California is 22 over Washington, eighth place Florida, a four point choice, could have trouble with Kentucky, ninth ranked Texas A&M is 15 over Rice and 10th listed Penn State, still smarting over its loss to North Carolina State, will pick on Ohio University for its comeback.

Fambrough's Kansas club, of which fairly great things were expected before the season, has had a disappointing campaign, the slate reading 4-5 and including a 56-0 disaster with Nebraska.

Introducing the '75 Corollas.
Including the lowest priced car in America.*

Radial tires standard on most models (SR-5 shown.)

Gas-saving 5-speed is standard on SR-5.

Lowest priced car in America.* Corolla 2-Door Sedan.
*Based on a comparison of manufacturers' 1975 suggested retail prices.

Comfortable Hi-back bucket seats are fully reclining.

All models feature lockable gas cap.

Basically, our '75 Corollas are gas-pinching economy cars.

But they come with more than basics.

For instance, our SR-5 sports such items as AM/FM radio, tach, clock, radial tires and a 5-speed transmission.

Fancy stuff, sure. But you don't pay a fancy price. Because it's all standard.

Still one of the world's great bargains.

As you can see, our other models are nicely endowed, too.

Even our lowest priced car, the Corolla 2-Door Sedan, comes with high standards.

Like: Fully reclining bucket seats, power front disc brakes and white-wall tires.

So you see, it's not so much the price that makes it a bargain.

It's what you get in the bargain.

Two extras that don't cost extra.

There are a couple of things we put in every '75 Corolla which we think you'll especially like.

First off, there's extra room. Which should make you feel comfortable about driving a small car.

Second off, there's extra care. We care that things fit and work right.

In short, we build every Toyota exactly the way we'd like you to own one.

With pride.

'Hen soccer team beats USIU, 2-0

Defending NAIA District Three soccer champion Pomona-Pitzer defeated United States International University, 2-0, at the Sagehens' Merritt Field Thursday afternoon to advance to a District Three semifinal game against Claremont-Mudd Saturday morning.

Francisco Anguiano scored the first Pomona goal midway in the second half thanks to an assist from Ken Mabie, a freshman from Damien High. Eric Orr tallied the second Sagehen goal.

Pomona is now 13-2-2 for the season while Claremont-Mudd, which defeated Pomona for the Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (SCIAC) title, owns a 12-2-2 season mark.

Saturday's semifinal game is slated for a 10 a.m. start at CMC. The winner Saturday will play either Westmont or Azusa Pacific for the District Title next week.

When you spread peanut butter and jelly on one piece of bread and then cover it with another piece of bread you are making a sandwich.

You owe some of this eating pleasure to the Earl of Sandwich, an English nobleman of the early 1700s. He is remembered, in part, for his notorious gambling.

According to tradition, he invented the sandwich while playing cards.

Refusing to take time away from the gambling table to eat, he ordered a servant to bring him two slices of bread with a piece of roast meat between them.

The sandwich became popular as a food because it could be easily prepared and served and eaten without the use of knives and forks.

Sandwiches today can be made from a variety of tasty fillings and can be served hot or cold, toasted or grilled. They can be eaten as giant three-deckers or prepared as dainty appetizers and in many other forms.

Here's wonderful news! A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

Portland power tower bomber

Money was his only motive, he says

By ROBERTA ULRICH

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — A handsome truck driver who dropped out of high school in his senior year confessed Wednesday to federal charges in a $1 million extortion plot and said his only motive was the money.

David W. Heesch, 34, pleaded guilty to two counts of dynamiting Bonneville Power Administration high voltage transmission line towers and one count of mailing a threatening letter—the 2½ page demand for money and threat to black out the city of Portland.

Heesch's trim brunette wife, Sheila, also 34, pleaded guilty to one charge of mailing the extortion letter and two counts of aiding and abetting the dynamiting.

They said no one else was involved and no more dynamite had been set.

U.S. District Court Judge Otto J. Skopil Jr. set sentencing for Dec. 9. Heesch could be given a maximum of 22 years in prison and $20,500 fine. Mrs. Heesch could be sentenced to up to 12 years in prison and fined up to $12,500.

Under questioning from Skopil, the Heeschs told the story of the extortion plot in court Wednesday.

In all, 11 BPA towers were blasted between Sept. 24 and Oct. 18 with total damage estimated at $150,000. In addition, extra security imposed after the bombings cost $20,000 a day.

Heesch, a truck driver who said he obtained his high school diploma through the Army after dropping out of school in his senior year of high school, said he conceived the extortion plot six months ago.

Skopil asked: "What was your intent?"

"To extort $1 million," replied Heesch. He did not mention any other motive nor did he give a specific reason for wanting the money.

Heesch said at the time he developed his plot he already had the dynamite and blasting caps. He said he bought the other materials and assembled the bombs at the couple's neat modern home in rural Beaver Creek, 15 miles southeast of here.

Because there was no publicity about blasting of the first six towers in Eastern Oregon he went back two weeks later to check to see if his bombs had gone off.

They had, but did so little damage that BPA officials didn't discover the blasts until Oct. 4. The agency made no announcement of the incident then.

First public announcement of damage was made when another set of towers was damaged 35 miles east of Portland Oct. 16. More towers were damaged Oct. 18 and that night a special delivery letter addressed to BPA administrator Don Hodel was received by the FBI.

The letter —signed "J. Hawker" —demanded $1 million and threatened to black out the city of Portland.

Asked if he intended to such serious damage, Heesch said, "I wanted it to look that way, I didn't think it would go that far."

Heesch said his wife aided him only because "I told her I would do it anyway and my chances of getting caught were 100 per cent more than if she helped me."

Mrs. Heesch, who had one year of business school, said her husband wrote the letters in longhand and she typed them, keeping carbon copies.

Want Ads Ring,

Want Ads have the ring of truth. When you pick up the phone to check on some item advertised in Classified, you can be sure of an honest bargain. Want Ads are famous for bargains in a wide range of goods and special services.

Are You Listening?

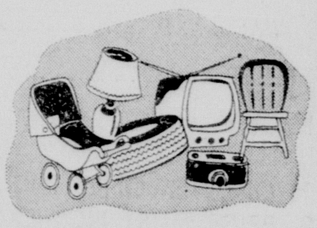
When money talks, people listen, and Want Ads mean money. There's money in all those discarded items lying around the house or garage. Someone will find them valuable and pay you good hard cash for the privilege of taking them off your hands. Be sure you are listening when Want Ad money talks.

On the Page,

This is where it all is -- in the Classified Pages. Houses, autos, appliances, furniture, toys, bikes, musical instruments, jobs, pets -- you name it.

Bargains Glisten.

Folks just naturally look to the Want Ads when they want a good bargain. They know there are valuable and serviceable goods available at amazingly low prices.



Selling in A Winter Moneyland.

Classified is truly a Winter Moneyland. Heavy Want Ad readership hits its peak during the stay-at-home time of the year. It's the popular time to round up your still useful but no-longer-used items lying around the premises. A speedy Want Ad will exchange them for welcome Christmas cash. There's money to be made, too, in the savings you'll find in Classified Yuletide gift bargains. Let Classified lead you to your Winter Moneyland.
